"We will fight before Paris, we will fight behind Paris, we will fight in the provinces and if we are driven out we will go to North Africa and if necessary to our possessions in America."

"At the hour I am addressing you," Reynaud wrote, "another dictatorship has just struck at France in the back.

JUDGE DELAYS SENTENCE FOR MRS. KARSHNER

Former Bank Bookkeeper Admits Guilt; Lawyer Asks Investigation

Mrs. Mildred Karshner, East Main Street, bookkeeper for the First National Bank until last December when she was arrested for embezzling and making false entries in the bank's accounts, pleaded guilty Thursday before Federal Judge Mell G. Underwood, who deferred sentence until next Thursday at 10 a. m.

Mrs. Karshner, who was represented by Attorney Joe W. Adkins, Jr., made no statement in Judge Underwood's court in the federal building, Columbus, her attorney appearing for her although she was present in the courtroom.

The federal grand jury last week indicted Mrs. Karshner on four counts, one charging embezzlement and the other three citing false entries in the bank's books. She admitted all four.

Judge Underwood said that sentence would be put off until federal probation officers went to Circleville to investigate Mrs. Karshner's case. The request for investigation was made by Attorney Adkins who asked the court to consider some mitigating circumstances before passing sentence.

"What facts would warrant an investigation?" Judge Underwood asked.

"Several," replied her attorney. "One would be her reasons for taking money (a shortage of about $14,000 is charged against Mrs. Karshner); another would be her 15 years in the service of the bank and a third would be the fact that there are no previous convictions against her record."

Judge Underwood addressed United States District Attorney Ray J. O'Donnell to ask what he thought concerning the case. O'Donnell replied: "This is just another bank case. All of the persons arrested come from good families and all have had good records in the past."

The court agreed to send investigating officers to Circleville after O'Donnell expressed no objection.

At a preliminary hearing before U. S. Commissioner Robert Newlon last January 5, Mrs. Karshner admitted that she had taken the

BERLIN PRESS CITES POSSIBILITY OF U. S. ENTRY IN BIG WAR

BERLIN, June 13—Possibility of American entry into the European war was featured by the German press today.

The influential Hamburger Fremdenblatt, which is close to the foreign office, took the view, however, that the United States will be able to do nothing more than send war materials to the Allies.

"President Roosevelt will only be able to deliver supplies," the paper said, "for two reasons:

"First, his military possibilities are limited.

"Second, the American people do not want again to save with their own blood the democratic ideals which the British and French peace-makers betrayed in 1919 against the better intentions of the American president.

ANY ATTEMPT TO HALT CONGRESS TO BE OPPOSED

WASHINGTON, June 13—President Roosevelt's legislative leaders have informed him that congress is determined to remain in session until the world crisis shows some sign of abating, it was learned today.

The information was conveyed as the position of the Allies seemed to grow hourly more precarious and congressman after congressman joined the ever-sweling ranks of the "stay in session" bloc.

Administration leaders, virtually abandoning all hope that congress could adjourn on the scheduled date of June 22, were believed trying to work out some kind of a compromise in which short recesses would be taken.

Rep. Boland (D) Pa., Democratic whip, who rounds up votes, admitted that "the feeling of the house now is against adjournment." Boland added, however, that "maybe next week, if the President sends down a message asking for adjournment, the situation will be different."

It will be his third radio speech since the guns began to roar in Europe last September.

TROOPS AT GATES OF METROPOLIS

Capital Declared To Be Open City, But Nazi Forces Claim It Is War Area Because French Troops Retreat Into Suburbs

SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE, June 13—Paris will not be defended, the French war ministry announced today.

While French troops fought steadfastly against a terrific German onslaught in Champagne and recorded a five-mile French advance in one counter-offensive, a spokesman from the war ministry announced:

"Paris will be defended from the North.

"But if we are driven back, our lines will be reformed south of the city.

"We will not fight in Paris.

"We wish to spare the city from pointless destruction. The Germans may still destroy Paris, but it will not be because of our military defense. The responsibility will not be ours."

TOURS, France, June 13—The Paris area was heavily bombed this morning shortly after the capital was proclaimed an open city, according to word received by American embassy officials here today.

BERLIN, June 13—With German tank divisions "approaching Paris," according to an official announcement, Berlin authorities claimed today that the town of Chalons-Sur-Marne has been occupied and that 200 undamaged French tanks had been captured.

Chalons-Sur-Marne lies about 90 miles east of Paris and some 30 miles southeast of Reims.

The German high command announced that more than 100,000 French and British have been taken since the main offensive was launched on June 5.

The official German announcement stated that Paris already is within range of German guns.

With matters apparently rapidly approaching a climax, it was understood the Reich will shortly forward an ultimatum to Paris, requesting unconditional surrender.

Like Warsaw Ultimatum

The ultimatum probably will be similar to that served on Warsaw at the time of the Polish conflict.

An authoritative German source told International News Service:

"We will exhaust every possible means to avert destruction of the city."

Earlier an authoritative statement was issued that German troops are "at the gates" of Paris.

Entry of Nazi troops into the Paris suburbs from the North and Northwest may only be a matter of hours, these German sources asserted.

It was claimed that Paris has been "practically encircled" by German troops which were said to have penetrated the northern and northwestern outskirts of the French capital while simultaneously driving deep wedges across the Seine River below (west of) Paris and effecting "numerous crossings" of the historic Marne River near Chateau Thierry.

Only in the South and Southwest has Paris not been surrounded, German circles stated.

This, it was claimed, leaves the troops defending the capital only the slimmest chance of carrying out successful sorties and has virtually bottled up the civilian population which still remains in Paris.

Authoritative circles pointed out that Paris proper already has become a war zone, since French troops are falling back to the suburbs with obvious intention of defending the city.

From London:

Newly-arrived British troops are fighting with the French in defense of Paris, London military circles revealed today as the war office disclosed a number of British and other Allied effectives had been captured by German forces in the coastal province of Normandy, west of Paris.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: A special German high command communique yesterday said surrounded French forces in St. Valery capitulated after further attempt to transport troops to the sea were broken up. It added that one French corps general, one English and four French divisional commanders surrendered and that the number of prisoners taken exceeded 20,000.)

The new British reinforcements, it was stated, are now in the battle line and are fighting with the French under orders of the French high command.

The Allied prisoners, estimated to number 6,000, were taken by the Germans because the high cliffs of the Normandy Coast and a heavy fog hampered embarkation, preventing a duplication of the successful evacuation of Dunkerque.

Two brigades of the captured British division had gone to Le Havre to assist the French to defend that port and these were successfully re-embarked. The German force which surrounded the remaining two British brigades and an undetermined number of French troops at St.

Like Warsaw Ultimatum

The ultimatum probably will be similar to that served on Warsaw at the time of the Polish conflict.

An authoritative German source told International News Service:

"We will exhaust every possible means to avert destruction of the city."

Earlier an authoritative statement was issued that German troops are "at the gates" of Paris.

Entry of Nazi troops into the Paris suburbs from the North and Northwest may only be a matter of hours, these German sources asserted.

It was claimed that Paris has been "practically encircled" by German troops which were said to have penetrated the northern and northwestern outskirts of the French capital while simultaneously driving deep wedges across the Seine River below (west of) Paris and effecting "numerous crossings" of the historic Marne River near Chateau Thierry.

Only in the South and Southwest has Paris not been surrounded, German circles stated.

This, it was claimed, leaves the troops defending the capital only the slimmest chance of carrying out successful sorties and has virtually bottled up the civilian population which still remains in Paris.

Authoritative circles pointed out that Paris proper already has become a war zone, since French troops are falling back to the suburbs with obvious intention of defending the city.

From London:

Newly-arrived British troops are fighting with the French in defense of Paris, London military circles revealed today as the war office disclosed a number of British and other Allied effectives had been captured by German forces in the coastal province of Normandy, west of Paris.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: A special German high command communique yesterday said surrounded French forces in St. Valery capitulated after further attempt to transport troops to the sea were broken up. It added that one French corps general, one English and four French divisional commanders surrendered and that the number of prisoners taken exceeded 20,000.)

The new British reinforcements, it was stated, are now in the battle line and are fighting with the French under orders of the French high command.

The Allied prisoners, estimated to number 6,000, were taken by the Germans because the high cliffs of the Normandy Coast and a heavy fog hampered embarkation, preventing a duplication of the successful evacuation of Dunkerque.

Two brigades of the captured British division had gone to Le Havre to assist the French to defend that port and these were successfully re-embarked. The German force which surrounded the remaining two British brigades and an undetermined number of French troops at St.

Dodgers' Title Hopes High With Medwick Added

Brooklyn Acquires Clouting Gardener And Pitcher Curt Davis For Bundle Of Cash, Several Men Of More Or Less Ability

By Pat Robinson

NEW YORK, June 13—Brooklyn Dodger Pennant, PFD., took a big jump in the National League market today with the acquisition of Outfielder Joe Medwick and Pitcher Curt Davis from the St. Louis Cardinals.

In the midst of their greatest championship drive in years, the Dodgers have obtained the slugging outfielder from the Cards at a time when he figures to do them the most good, and learned of the deal last night about the time they were coming from behind to tie then beat the Pittsburgh Pirates, 5 to 4, under lights.

The victory kept the Dodgers out in front in the pennant campaign and, coupled with the deal for Medwick, brought a new wave of enthusiasm and hope to Brooklyn today. While Davis has been of little use to the Cardinals this year, he may prove to be a useful citizen under the guidance of Manager Leo Durocher. But regardless of what Davis may or may not do, Medwick is the player the Dodgers have been trying to land for two years.

Ernie Koy Traded

And they got him without giving up any players of consequence except Outfielder Ernie Koy, with the result that they figure to stay in the race down to the wire—especially if they maintain their hustle, a notable sample of it being displayed in last night's victory. After Vito Tamulis had given up three runs without retiring a man in the first, Whit Wyatt came in to stop the Pirates cold, while his mates went to work on Mace Brown and finally finished him.

The Dodgers had to win to stay in front, for the Cincinnati Reds, with Derringer operating, beat Higbe and the Philadelphia Phillies, 5 to 1, on only five hits.

Those were the only games in the National League, but there was a full quota in the American.

Charley Keller's homer with two aboard gave the Yanks a 7-5 decision over the Tigers. The Red Sox staged a six-run uprising in the eighth to down the Indians, 9-5. Ken Chase outpitched Eldon Auker as the Senators nosed out the Browns, 3-2. And the Athletics trimmed the White Sox, 3-2, The A's made only three hits off Thornton Lee but two of these were homers by Johnson and Chapman accounting for all the Philadelphia runs.

Medwick, 28 years old, joined the Cardinals late in 1932 and promptly began waving one of the most dangerous bats in the league. He was the batting star of the 1934 World Series in which the Cards beat Detroit, with a series batting average of .379. In 1937 Medwick was chosen the National League's most valuable player, and won the league batting championship with a mark of .374.

In 1939, Medwick batted .332 and this spring he was a holdout until after training had started Last year Medwick failed to get along with Manager Ray Blades, and he was known to desire a change.

Medwick is a righthanded hitter. He broke into organized baseball in 1930 with Scottsdale, Pa.

Davis With Cubs

Davis, 33-year-old righthander, went to the Cards from the Chicago Cubs early in 1938 as one of three players exchanged for Dizzy Dean. He worked in 49 games last season, winning 22 and losing 16. So far this year he has lost four. Many observers blame his poor 1940 showing on overwork last year and feel that with proper rest between games he is a capable hurler.

The Dodgers gave up four players and an unannounced amount of cash for Medwick and Davis. Neither President Sam Breadon of the Cardinals nor Larry MacPhail, Brooklyn general manager, would reveal how much money was involved in the deal, but estimates ran from $100,000 to almost $200,000.

Players sent to St. Louis by Brooklyn were Outfielder Koy, Righthand Pitcher Carl Doyle, Infielder Bert Haas, who was on option to Montreal in the International League, and Right Hand Pitcher Sam Nahem, who was with Nashville in the Southern Association.

All players will join their new teams at once, it was announced.

RED BIRDS BUMP KANSAS CITY OUT OF FIRST PLACE

COLUMBUS, June 13 — The Western clubs of the American Association were back on home lots today with two of them virtually tied for the league lead.

The Kansas City Blues, who had held undisputed possession of first place almost since the opening of the season, returned home with a .500 record for their Eastern invasion. The Blues were knocked into the virtual tie—they actually are in second place by 14 percentage points—by the Columbus Red Birds.

The Red Birds scored the winning run in a 6-5 game in the last of the ninth when Dickson, Columbus hurler and the third one to face the Blues during the game, singled Cooper home.

Meanwhile, Minneapolis was putting the skids under Indianapolis. The Millers won, 14 to 7, to take over the first place in the Association by the few percentage points.

In other games, Milwaukee swamped Toledo, 17 to 6, and Louisville defeated St. Paul, 7 to 4.

HEROES AND GOATS

HEROES: Charley Keller, Yanks, whose 3-run homer beat the Tigers; Whit Wyatt, Dodgers, who pitched a full nine innings as a relief man to trim the Pirates.

GOATS: Thornton Lee, White Sox, who gave only three hits but two of them were homers and the Athletics beat him; Al Milnar, Indians, who blew a two run lead in the eighth to the Red Sox.

WALKER VS. WOOFFORD

COLUMBUS, June 13 — Jack "Buddy" Walker, undefeated Columbus Negro heavyweight, will meet Jack Woofford, of Texas, Monday night in a 10-round bout, it was announced today.

STATE CHANGES HUNTING LAWS

"Staggered" Season Out; Dates Decided By Commission

COLUMBUS, June 13—"Staggered hunting" was tentatively abandoned by the state conservation commission today.

The system, inaugurated in 1939, permitted hunting on the last four days of each week after opening day. It was dropped after protests by farmers and sportsmen alike.

Farmers charged that the staggered season meant virtually four opening days and caused "too much trouble." Although a majority of sportsmen participating in a poll taken by the conservation board favored the system, many voted against it on the grounds that it led to the "killing of too much game."

Thus the dates for hunting pheasant, rabbit, partridge and grouse reverts to the same dates as 1937. The season opens on November 15 and closes November 30.

Although the commission did not officially adopt the new hunting and fishing laws at the quarterly session yesterday, several changes in the rules were revealed and will be enacted at the next regular meeting.

To Conserve Raccoon

Changes will include the shortening of the raccoon season by 15 days. The season opens December 1 and closes January 15 under the new regulations. The commission stated that the move was merely to conserve the coon, which has been killed off rapidly in the past few seasons.

The Red Fox season, which has been argued widely in Ohio, especially in Jefferson and Knox Counties, was not fixed by the board. Districts may be outlined later, with protected zones outlined and year-round open seasons designated in others.

In the only other important change in the laws, Wood County was dropped from the Lake Erie district as the commission fixed new boundary lines. The new lines will place the following counties in the Lake Erie section; Lucas, Ottawa, Sandusky, Erie, Lorain, Cuyahoga, Lake and Ashtabula.

Open season and bag limits on various game are:

Hare or rabbit: November 15 to January 1, four per day or eight in possession after first day.

Squirrel: September 25 to October 10, four per day or eight in possession after first day.

Racoon: December 1 to January 15, limit two per day or in possession.

Red Fox: Decision pending.

Gray Fox: No closed season and no bag limit.

Ring-neck pheasant: November 15th to 30th, inclusive, two cock pheasants per day, four in possession after first day.

Hungarian Partridge: November 15 to 30, inclusive, four per day and four in possession.

Grouse: November 15 to 30th, inclusive, two per day, four in possession after first day.

Mink: Inland trapping district—December 1 to January 15, no bag limit. Lake Erie trapping district—December 15 to March 15, no bag limit.

Muskrat: Same as mink.

Opossum and Skunk: November 15 to January 15, no bag limit.

Old Zip Gone, But Jack Still Packs Them In

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, June 13—With deep and abiding respect for accuracy it can be reported today that Jack Dempsey is not the man he used to be. At the tender age of 45, he's washed up. He won't ever be a white hope now. The old Manassa mauler can scarcely get his hands up because its wearisome, nor his body down in a crouch due to the suggestion of a bay window that he has sprouted during his years as a restaurateur around here.

However, there still is a thrill in merely seeing him going through the ropes as he did yesterday for a sparring session of two one-minute rounds, with Arturo Godoy at the latter's Carmel, N. Y., camp where he is training for his return engagement with Joe Louis for the heavyweight championship.

Dempsey climbed back out of the ring after the abbreviated session panting and wheezing and puffing after having done very little earnest sparring, but the drove of photographers and several droves of sports writers, along with a pop-eyed crowd of cash customers, got more enjoyment out of Dempsey's two minutes than they would out of six rounds from another fighter.

The point of the workout was to stir up some publicity for Godoy's engagement with Louis, and Dempsey's visit served that purpose admirably. But we fear the old Manassa man mauler had better give up his notion of whipping wrestlers, starting at Atlanta on July 1. One of them may get rough by sheer accident.

Yesterday's party also brought about a cessation of hostilities between Dempsey and Promoter Mike Jacobs, who have been squabbling in a major way over numerous minor matters for a long time.

After friendship had begun to ooze through the premises so thick that you could scoop it up with a shovel, Dempsey said of Godoy, who is meeting Louis under Jacobs' promotion:

"This Godoy is a good, tough, rough fellow, and he has the same chance to go the limit this time that he had before when he went those 15 with Louis. But, of course, Louis will knock out anybody he can hit, but Godoy—" etc.

DERRINGER PUTS HIS FIFTH TILT IN ROW IN BOOK

CINCINNATI, O., June 13—The Cincinnati Reds had a day off today as they celebrated Paul Derringer's fifth straight victory of the season, a 2 to 1 decision gained over the Philadelphia Phils last night.

Derringer allowed Philadelphia eight hits but issued them at safe intervals and walked but one man, and he intentionally. The victory left the Reds in a virtual tie with Brooklyn for the National League lead, although Brooklyn was ahead on the percentage basis.

Cincinnati scored its first run in the second on a double by Frank McCormick, a wild pitch and Ernie Lombardi's long fly to Chuck Klein. The Reds scored again in the third on a double, a sacrifice and a long fly.

The win was Derringer's eighth of the year against four losses.

LAKEWOOD MAN PLANNING NEW G. O. P. TICKET

COLUMBUS, June 13—Formation of the Progessive Republican party, which plans to sponsor an independent state ticket at the November election, was announced today by Raymond J. Jeffries, of Lakewood, president of the Ohio Tax-Free Homes association.

Jeffries declared that an entire ticket of state officials would be placed on the ballot by petition to oppose the G. O. P. party slate headed by Governor Bricker.

"The public lost faith in the leadership of the Republican party, which made possible the present era of the New Deal," Jeffries said. "The new Progressive wing of the Republican party will carry on the traditional principles of the Party of Abraham Lincoln.

"The May 14 primary was a clear-cut protest of the people against present organization and administration in Ohio. They are thoroughly disgusted with hypocrisy and insincerity."

Jeffreys referred to the pre-primary battle between G. O. P. State Chairman Ed D. Schorr and Mayor Harold H. Burton, of Cleveland, who won the Republican U. S. senatorial nomination after Schorr personally had endorsed Congressman Dudley A. White, of Norwalk, for the post.

In his announcement Jeffreys failed to indicate whether he or someone else would be the new party's candidate for governor.

Several weeks ago, Charles H. Hubbell, of Cleveland, intimated he would sponsor a complete Independent Democratic ticket to oppose the one headed by former Gov. Martin L. Davey.

SETS NEW KIND OF RECORD

SAN JOSE, Cal.,—An all-time record for not getting any place is claimed for the bottle which J. J. Foley, department store assistant manager, dropped into the San Joaquin River at Stockton ten years ago. A note in the bottle promised a pair of silk stockings to the finder. The other day a letter came from a claimant to the stockings, Shigeo Masuka, Stockton Japanese who found the bottle less than 20 miles from where Foley dropped it in.

We want one fact more widely known. Our prices are never higher than elsewhere.

But we fear the old Manassa man mauler had better give up his notion of whipping wrestlers, starting at Atlanta on July 1. One of them may get rough by sheer accident.

Yesterday's party also brought about a cessation of hostilities between Dempsey and Promoter Mike Jacobs, who have been squabbling in a major way over numerous minor matters for a long time.

After friendship had begun to ooze through the premises so thick that you could scoop it up with a shovel, Dempsey said of Godoy, who is meeting Louis under Jacobs' promotion:

"This Godoy is a good, tough, rough fellow, and he has the same chance to go the limit this time that he had before when he went those 15 with Louis. But, of course, Louis will knock out anybody he can hit, but Godoy—" etc.

DERRINGER PUTS HIS FIFTH TILT IN ROW IN BOOK

CINCINNATI, O., June 13—The Cincinnati Reds had a day off today as they celebrated Paul Derringer's fifth straight victory of the season, a 2 to 1 decision gained over the Philadelphia Phils last night.

Derringer allowed Philadelphia eight hits but issued them at safe intervals and walked but one man, and he intentionally. The victory left the Reds in a virtual tie with Brooklyn for the National League lead, although Brooklyn was ahead on the percentage basis.

Cincinnati scored its first run in the second on a double by Frank McCormick, a wild pitch and Ernie Lombardi's long fly to Chuck Klein. The Reds scored again in the third on a double, a sacrifice and a long fly.

The win was Derringer's eighth of the year against four losses.

LAKEWOOD MAN PLANNING NEW G. O. P. TICKET

COLUMBUS, June 13—Formation of the Progessive Republican party, which plans to sponsor an independent state ticket at the November election, was announced today by Raymond J. Jeffries, of Lakewood, president of the Ohio Tax-Free Homes association.

Jeffries declared that an entire ticket of state officials would be placed on the ballot by petition to oppose the G. O. P. party slate headed by Governor Bricker.

"The public lost faith in the leadership of the Republican party, which made possible the present era of the New Deal," Jeffries said. "The new Progressive wing of the Republican party will carry on the traditional principles of the Party of Abraham Lincoln.

"The May 14 primary was a clear-cut protest of the people against present organization and administration in Ohio. They are thoroughly disgusted with hypocrisy and insincerity."

Jeffreys referred to the pre-primary battle between G. O. P. State Chairman Ed D. Schorr and Mayor Harold H. Burton, of Cleveland, who won the Republican U. S. senatorial nomination after Schorr personally had endorsed Congressman Dudley A. White, of Norwalk, for the post.

In his announcement Jeffreys failed to indicate whether he or someone else would be the new party's candidate for governor.

Several weeks ago, Charles H. Hubbell, of Cleveland, intimated he would sponsor a complete Independent Democratic ticket to oppose the one headed by former Gov. Martin L. Davey.

SETS NEW KIND OF RECORD

SAN JOSE, Cal.,—An all-time record for not getting any place is claimed for the bottle which J. J. Foley, department store assistant manager, dropped into the San Joaquin River at Stockton ten years ago. A note in the bottle promised a pair of silk stockings to the finder. The other day a letter came from a claimant to the stockings, Shigeo Masuka, Stockton Japanese who found the bottle less than 20 miles from where Foley dropped it in.

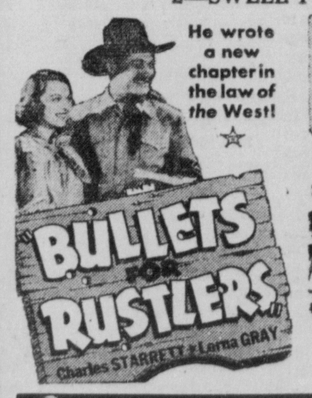

We want one fact more widely known. Our prices are never higher than elsewhere.

AUDITOR NAMED IN AFFIDAVITS OF 'SHAKEDOWN'

Two Percent Of Salaries Demanded By Ferguson, Ex-employees Say

CIVIL SERVICE TO ACT

Offenses, If Proven, May Be Costly, Member Of Board Claims

COLUMBUS, June 13 — Affidavits charging State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson and several of his aides with collecting two percent from salaries of civil service employes for campaign purposes, were filed today with Franklin County Prosecutor Ralph F. Bartlett by Gertrude Jones, chairman of the civil service board.

The affidavits, allegedly signed by eight former employes of the state auditor's office, were secured voluntarily, Miss Jones said. Photo-static copies of checks allegedly made out in payment for the two percent assessments were also turned over to the prosecutor.

The affidavits were signed by Elmer J. Peterson, Cleveland, former assistant examiner; Fred C. Stiles, Marietta, former county office examiner; John J. Badurnia, Columbus, assistant examiner; Pete Tonchina, Dayton, former examiner in the liquor division; Russell A. Thomas, Fayetteville, relief examiner.

Others were signed by Nell Mccue, Van Wert; Rachael Stewart, Springfield, and Lucille Hartzer, Bucyrus, all former school examiners. Miss Mertzer and Miss Stewart are still on the payroll of the state auditor's office although both are on absence leaves.

Complaints Received

In a letter which accompanied the affidavits to Prosecutor Bartlett, Miss Jones stated that "numerous complaints relative to alleged political assessments in the office of the auditor of state had been received."

"Under the duties of the civil service commission as prescribed by law, the commission made an investigation concerning the charges against the auditor," she declared.

"The results of these investigations under oath and on affidavits attached hereto, are referred to you (Prosecutor Bartless) for further investigation and appropriate action as the county prosecutor for the county in which the offense is alleged to have taken place," the letter concluded.

Most of the alleged checks and money orders exhibited were made payable to the late H. S. Brown, chief clerk of the Bureau of Inspections under Auditor Ferguson, and C. C. Cluggish, a deputy in the auditor's employe.

Also charged in the affidavits with demanding the assessments for the "auditor's campaign fund" were, O. P. Schoick, chief examiner, and Norman E. Beck, chief deputy state auditor. Numerous county and district chief examiners were charged with coercing the civil service employes to pay "or else."

Notice Received

Fred C. Stiles, Marietta, a former county office examiner, from December 8, 1930, until he obtained a transfer to the state highway department in October, 1939, charged in an affidavit, "the first check after Joseph Ferguson took office carried a notice attached which demanded two percent of my salary."

The notice said, according to Stiles, "1938 miscellaneous contributions—2% to H. S. Brown."

Stiles said he mailed checks totaling $131 payable to Brown and Cluggish between January, 1937, and April, 1939, when he "determined not to make further payments."

The affidavit continued, "I was transferred to Carrol County. I was later summoned to Columbus and Walter Garrison, deputy supervisor of the bureau of inspection, informed me that the front office had no assignments. As I was paid on a per diem basis while on assignments, the fact that I was to be given no more assignments meant no further pay."

Stiles was later permitted to transfer from the auditor's office to the state highway department, he declared. The checks which he allegedly paid were written on the First National Bank, of Caldwell.

Reasons Discussed

In his sworn statement, Pete Z. Tonchina, Dayton, former examiner in the liquor division, charged he was approached by Gerald Miller, Millersburg, chief examiner in the liquor division, in regards to the assessment question. Miller allegedly said, "Joe Ferguson, state auditor, wants two percent of your salary each month for political reasons, because, he, Mr. Ferguson, gave you a job and it cost money to be elected."

Tonchina also stated that on one occasion in Columbus, Ferguson told him to "mingle with the foreign element in Youngstown and put in a good word for me for political reasons."

His affidavit alleged payments were made to Miller totaling $41.25 for 13 months and later payments were made to Albert Balmert, examiner in charge of the liquor division.

The Dayton man further alleged that O. P. Van Schoick once informed him at a meeting in Columbus to "pay Benny George your 2 percent and do it in a hurry." George is another Ferguson employ.

Miss McCue, a former school examiner who is now principal of a Van Wert business school, charged that on June 1, 1937, Walter Garrison, deputy supervisor of the Bureau of Inspection and supervisor of public officials, told her that "two percent of your salary should be paid as we owe it to the chief."

She also alleged that on November 4, 1938, in Columbus, following a "school for examiners." the school examiners were told to go home and "do political work until after the election."

"At the same time" her affidavit stated, "we were all urged to pay up our two percent."

Elmer Peterson, Cleveland relief examiner, said that he was "given to understand by Van Schoick that I was to contribute two percent of my salary."

"I made five cash payments to Gale Clymer's secretary," he alleged. Clymer was chief relief examiner in Cleveland at the time.

Checks totaling $108.18 allegedly payable to Brown and Cluggish and written by Rachael Stewart, Springfield, on the Logonda National Bank, were also displayed by Miss Jones.

Miss Stewart, a school examiner, is now on leave of absence but is still carried on the state auditor's payrolls.

Lucille Hertzer, Bucyrus, and assistant examiner, and also still on the state payroll, refused to pay the alleged assessments as did Russell A. Thomas, Fayetteville, former examiner who terminated his stay with the auditor's office October, 1939.

The law carries a fine of $500 and six months in the county jail and vacation of the office should the state auditor be convicted, Miss Jones stated.

TWO ENTER OHIO PEN

COLUMBUS, June 13 — Robert E. Lee and William S. Hart, inmates of the Boys' Industrial School, Lancaster, began life terms in Ohio Penitentiary Wednesday for the slaying of Alex Stromstead, industrial school taylor. The two eighteen-year-old boys killed Stromstead with an iron bar when they attempted to escape from the school. A Lancaster jury found Hart guilty of first degree murder and Lee guilty of second degree murder.

PETTENGILL

"The Gentleman from Indiana"

LOOK BEFORE YOU LEAP

Just before the first World War Great Britain had a population of 40,824,000, exclusive of Ireland; France had a population of 38,961,000, total for the two, 79,785,000. By 1940 the population of these two countries had increased slightly; Great Britain, exclusive of Ireland, 44,933,000; France 42,104,000; total for the two 87,037,00. Of the apparent slight population growth of France, 3,143,000 is accounted for by the re-conquest of Alsace Lorraine. Without that, her population for these 26 years has remained practically stationary.

In 1913 Germany had a population of 64,903,000; in 1940, including Austria and Sudentenland, 79,600,000, a gain of 14,697,000. In addition she has taken over a large part of Poland. Just how many Poles are now in the Reich is not known, but Poland's population was 34,775,000 before the Hitler and Stalin partition. It is believed that Hitler got the bulk of the population, say 20,000,000. In addition, Hitler now has control over the balance of Czechoslovakia—6,576,000; Denmark 3,777,000; Norway 2,907,000; Holland 8,639,000; Luxemburg 301,000. This conquered territory totals 42,000,000. This gives the Reich, at least for the moment, 121,800,000.

PETTENGILL

Hitler now has a strictly Germanic population nearly equal to that of Great Britain and France combined, and including his military conquests, his ratio of manpower as against the allies is 140 to 100. Moreover, the German people are increasing in population faster than their enemies.

When the last World War ended Clemenceau said, "There are 20,000,000 too many Germans." If he were living now he would have to say there are 40,000,000 too many Germans, not counting the people under Hitler's iron heel.

These figures by no means give a true picture of relative fighting power, for at least two reasons: First, they exclude Germany's deficiency in the war materials of warfare which were described in previous articles. Further, a vanquished people may be a wolf gnawing at the vitals of their conqueror, and cannot be considered for "front fighting." Nevertheless, their man-power is available for agriculture and non-military service. The comparison also leaves out of consideration the vast colonial populations and resources of the French and British Empires. With India seething in revolt, however, her millions may not be much of an ally in the advertised world conflict.

Nevertheless, these figures are worthy of serious consideration in attempting to think through to a long range national policy. It is not to be forgotten that in the last World War it took Britain, France, Belgium, Italy, Russia, Greece, Roumania, Japan, the United States and South America to beat Germany. Today, Russia, Italy and Japan are not fighting Germany. For whatever they may be worth, Germany has alliances with all three.

In the so-called line-up of the "democracies against the dictatorships," excluding colonial populations of uncertain value, we have the following:

Dictatorships:
Germany, with conquered populations,	121,800,000
Italy	44,026,000
Japan	72,222,000
Russia	170,467,000
Total	408,515,000
Democracies:
Great Britain and France	87,037,000
United States	130,000,000

If you count Turkey, whom we once called "the unspeakable Turk," a democracy, add 35,764,000

Total 252,801,000

These totals assume that Greece, Roumania, Hungary, Jugoslavia, etc., would cancel each other out in the melee.

Total for the democracies, 252,801,000, as against 408,515,000, a ratio of 161 to 100 in favor of the dictators. As between Great Britain and France and the United States, we furnish 60 percent of the combined man power.

We can view the situation hysterically or as we would expect a commanding general to do,—look at the cold facts. Whatever may be said about other parts of Col. Lindbergh's recent address, he was absolutely sound in asking the questions: "Whom are we arming against? And what are we to defend? Is it the United States, or North America, or the Western Hemisphere, or the Dutch East Indies? In short, does President Roosevelt have a national policy? And if so, what is it?"

Hitler's trampling on little lands that asked nothing except to live in the sunshine of peace, is undefiled barbarism. But we said the same thing when the Kaiser did it. We got rid of the Kaiser. And got Hitler. With every resource of the United States thrown in, we may get rid of Hitler. Then who do we get? Meantime, what do we get at home?

CROP CONDITION IN STATE ABOVE AVERAGE JUNE 1

COLUMBUS, June 13 — Crop conditions generally in Ohio were above average on June 1, the Federal-State Crop Reporting Service anncunced today.

The winter wheat crop gives promise of 39,422,000 bushels as compared with 37,070,000 a year ago, Glenn S. Ray, statistician, reported. The prospective 1940 yield is 20.5 bushels per acre, or one bushel higher than last year.

Hay and pasture crops made rapid growth in May and are considerably above average, said Ray, but the rye, apple, peach, pear and cherry crops likely will fall below those of 1939.

The forecast for rye on June 1 was 1,189,000 bushels, or 43,000 bushels less than a year ago, while the condition of oats on the same date was 77 percent normal, or 16 points above last year.

Milk production per cow in herds kept by Ohio crops reporters on June 1 averaged 20.3 pounds or .4 pound more than a year ago. Egg production per 100 layers in farm flocks of less than 400 hens and pullets averaged 56.6 eggs on June 1, compared with 55.6 a year ago.

PATROL OFFICER NABS FUGITIVE IN GUN BATTLE

WILMINGTON, June 13—Captured after a running gun battle, Benjamin Hughes, alias Hightower, 25-year-old Negro, was held today pending arrival of authorities from Georgia where he fled a prison camp in 1935.

State Highway Patrol Sergeant E. P. Webb spotted Hughes driving an automobile stolen from two officers in West Virginia. Webb gave chase and exchanged fire with the Negro.

Near Georgetown, in Brown County, Webb said the Negro's car missed a curve, struck a guard rail and was wrecked. After a short chase the patrolman captured the escaped Negro.

Previously, authorities said the Georgia Negro had overpowered two West Virginia officers, chained them to a tree and fled with their guns and automobile.

Complaints Received

In a letter which accompanied the affidavits to Prosecutor Bartlett, Miss Jones stated that "numerous complaints relative to alleged political assessments in the office of the auditor of state had been received."

"Under the duties of the civil service commission as prescribed by law, the commission made an investigation concerning the charges against the auditor," she declared.

"The results of these investigations under oath and on affidavits attached hereto, are referred to you (Prosecutor Bartless) for further investigation and appropriate action as the county prosecutor for the county in which the offense is alleged to have taken place," the letter concluded.

Most of the alleged checks and money orders exhibited were made payable to the late H. S. Brown, chief clerk of the Bureau of Inspections under Auditor Ferguson, and C. C. Cluggish, a deputy in the auditor's employe.

Also charged in the affidavits with demanding the assessments for the "auditor's campaign fund" were, O. P. Schoick, chief examiner, and Norman E. Beck, chief deputy state auditor. Numerous county and district chief examiners were charged with coercing the civil service employes to pay "or else."

Notice Received

Fred C. Stiles, Marietta, a former county office examiner, from December 8, 1930, until he obtained a transfer to the state highway department in October, 1939, charged in an affidavit, "the first check after Joseph Ferguson took office carried a notice attached which demanded two percent of my salary."

The notice said, according to Stiles, "1938 miscellaneous contributions—2% to H. S. Brown."

Stiles said he mailed checks totaling $131 payable to Brown and Cluggish between January, 1937, and April, 1939, when he "determined not to make further payments."

The affidavit continued, "I was transferred to Carrol County. I was later summoned to Columbus and Walter Garrison, deputy supervisor of the bureau of inspection, informed me that the front office had no assignments. As I was paid on a per diem basis while on assignments, the fact that I was to be given no more assignments meant no further pay."

Stiles was later permitted to transfer from the auditor's office to the state highway department, he declared. The checks which he allegedly paid were written on the First National Bank, of Caldwell.

Reasons Discussed

In his sworn statement, Pete Z. Tonchina, Dayton, former examiner in the liquor division, charged he was approached by Gerald Miller, Millersburg, chief examiner in the liquor division, in regards to the assessment question. Miller allegedly said, "Joe Ferguson, state auditor, wants two percent of your salary each month for political reasons, because, he, Mr. Ferguson, gave you a job and it cost money to be elected."

Tonchina also stated that on one occasion in Columbus, Ferguson told him to "mingle with the foreign element in Youngstown and put in a good word for me for political reasons."

His affidavit alleged payments were made to Miller totaling $41.25 for 13 months and later payments were made to Albert Balmert, examiner in charge of the liquor division.

The Dayton man further alleged that O. P. Van Schoick once informed him at a meeting in Columbus to "pay Benny George your 2 percent and do it in a hurry." George is another Ferguson employ.

Miss McCue, a former school examiner who is now principal of a Van Wert business school, charged that on June 1, 1937, Walter Garrison, deputy supervisor of the Bureau of Inspection and supervisor of public officials, told her that "two percent of your salary should be paid as we owe it to the chief."

She also alleged that on November 4, 1938, in Columbus, following a "school for examiners." the school examiners were told to go home and "do political work until after the election."

"At the same time" her affidavit stated, "we were all urged to pay up our two percent."

Elmer Peterson, Cleveland relief examiner, said that he was "given to understand by Van Schoick that I was to contribute two percent of my salary."

"I made five cash payments to Gale Clymer's secretary," he alleged. Clymer was chief relief examiner in Cleveland at the time.

Checks totaling $108.18 allegedly payable to Brown and Cluggish and written by Rachael Stewart, Springfield, on the Logonda National Bank, were also displayed by Miss Jones.

Miss Stewart, a school examiner, is now on leave of absence but is still carried on the state auditor's payrolls.

Lucille Hertzer, Bucyrus, and assistant examiner, and also still on the state payroll, refused to pay the alleged assessments as did Russell A. Thomas, Fayetteville, former examiner who terminated his stay with the auditor's office October, 1939.

The law carries a fine of $500 and six months in the county jail and vacation of the office should the state auditor be convicted, Miss Jones stated.

TWO ENTER OHIO PEN

COLUMBUS, June 13 — Robert E. Lee and William S. Hart, inmates of the Boys' Industrial School, Lancaster, began life terms in Ohio Penitentiary Wednesday for the slaying of Alex Stromstead, industrial school taylor. The two eighteen-year-old boys killed Stromstead with an iron bar when they attempted to escape from the school. A Lancaster jury found Hart guilty of first degree murder and Lee guilty of second degree murder.

"The Gentleman from Indiana"

LOOK BEFORE YOU LEAP

Just before the first World War Great Britain had a population of 40,824,000, exclusive of Ireland; France had a population of 38,961,000, total for the two, 79,785,000. By 1940 the population of these two countries had increased slightly; Great Britain, exclusive of Ireland, 44,933,000; France 42,104,000; total for the two 87,037,00. Of the apparent slight population growth of France, 3,143,000 is accounted for by the re-conquest of Alsace Lorraine. Without that, her population for these 26 years has remained practically stationary.

In 1913 Germany had a population of 64,903,000; in 1940, including Austria and Sudentenland, 79,600,000, a gain of 14,697,000. In addition she has taken over a large part of Poland. Just how many Poles are now in the Reich is not known, but Poland's population was 34,775,000 before the Hitler and Stalin partition. It is believed that Hitler got the bulk of the population, say 20,000,000. In addition, Hitler now has control over the balance of Czechoslovakia—6,576,000; Denmark 3,777,000; Norway 2,907,000; Holland 8,639,000; Luxemburg 301,000. This conquered territory totals 42,000,000. This gives the Reich, at least for the moment, 121,800,000.

PETTENGILL

Hitler now has a strictly Germanic population nearly equal to that of Great Britain and France combined, and including his military conquests, his ratio of manpower as against the allies is 140 to 100. Moreover, the German people are increasing in population faster than their enemies.

When the last World War ended Clemenceau said, "There are 20,000,000 too many Germans." If he were living now he would have to say there are 40,000,000 too many Germans, not counting the people under Hitler's iron heel.

These figures by no means give a true picture of relative fighting power, for at least two reasons: First, they exclude Germany's deficiency in the war materials of warfare which were described in previous articles. Further, a vanquished people may be a wolf gnawing at the vitals of their conqueror, and cannot be considered for "front fighting." Nevertheless, their man-power is available for agriculture and non-military service. The comparison also leaves out of consideration the vast colonial populations and resources of the French and British Empires. With India seething in revolt, however, her millions may not be much of an ally in the advertised world conflict.

Nevertheless, these figures are worthy of serious consideration in attempting to think through to a long range national policy. It is not to be forgotten that in the last World War it took Britain, France, Belgium, Italy, Russia, Greece, Roumania, Japan, the United States and South America to beat Germany. Today, Russia, Italy and Japan are not fighting Germany. For whatever they may be worth, Germany has alliances with all three.

In the so-called line-up of the "democracies against the dictatorships," excluding colonial populations of uncertain value, we have the following:

Dictatorships:
Germany, with conquered populations,	121,800,000
Italy	44,026,000
Japan	72,222,000
Russia	170,467,000
Total	408,515,000
Democracies:
Great Britain and France	87,037,000
United States	130,000,000
If you count Turkey, whom we once called "the unspeakable Turk," a democracy, add	35,764,000
Total	252,801,000

These totals assume that Greece, Roumania, Hungary, Jugoslavia, etc., would cancel each other out in the melee.

Total for the democracies, 252,801,000, as against 408,515,000, a ratio of 161 to 100 in favor of the dictators. As between Great Britain and France and the United States, we furnish 60 percent of the combined man power.

We can view the situation hysterically or as we would expect a commanding general to do,—look at the cold facts. Whatever may be said about other parts of Col. Lindbergh's recent address, he was absolutely sound in asking the questions: "Whom are we arming against? And what are we to defend? Is it the United States, or North America, or the Western Hemisphere, or the Dutch East Indies? In short, does President Roosevelt have a national policy? And if so, what is it?"

Hitler's trampling on little lands that asked nothing except to live in the sunshine of peace, is undefiled barbarism. But we said the same thing when the Kaiser did it. We got rid of the Kaiser. And got Hitler. With every resource of the United States thrown in, we may get rid of Hitler. Then who do we get? Meantime, what do we get at home?

CROP CONDITION IN STATE ABOVE AVERAGE JUNE 1

COLUMBUS, June 13 — Crop conditions generally in Ohio were above average on June 1, the Federal-State Crop Reporting Service anncunced today.

The winter wheat crop gives promise of 39,422,000 bushels as compared with 37,070,000 a year ago, Glenn S. Ray, statistician, reported. The prospective 1940 yield is 20.5 bushels per acre, or one bushel higher than last year.

Hay and pasture crops made rapid growth in May and are considerably above average, said Ray, but the rye, apple, peach, pear and cherry crops likely will fall below those of 1939.

The forecast for rye on June 1 was 1,189,000 bushels, or 43,000 bushels less than a year ago, while the condition of oats on the same date was 77 percent normal, or 16 points above last year.

Milk production per cow in herds kept by Ohio crops reporters on June 1 averaged 20.3 pounds or .4 pound more than a year ago. Egg production per 100 layers in farm flocks of less than 400 hens and pullets averaged 56.6 eggs on June 1, compared with 55.6 a year ago.

PATROL OFFICER NABS FUGITIVE IN GUN BATTLE

WILMINGTON, June 13—Captured after a running gun battle, Benjamin Hughes, alias Hightower, 25-year-old Negro, was held today pending arrival of authorities from Georgia where he fled a prison camp in 1935.

State Highway Patrol Sergeant E. P. Webb spotted Hughes driving an automobile stolen from two officers in West Virginia. Webb gave chase and exchanged fire with the Negro.

Near Georgetown, in Brown County, Webb said the Negro's car missed a curve, struck a guard rail and was wrecked. After a short chase the patrolman captured the escaped Negro.

Previously, authorities said the Georgia Negro had overpowered two West Virginia officers, chained them to a tree and fled with their guns and automobile.

Nazi Ultimatum For Paris Near

Valery-En-Caux consisted of four divisions, including one armored corps.

There was no definite announcement regarding Le Havre, but military officials said that the town has not necessarily fallen. It was admitted that the British lost large supplies at St. Valery.

Announcement that Paris had been declared an open town was interpreted in London as meaning that the outskirts and approaches will be defended, but that there will be no street fighting inside the city.

British information declared that the German thrust around Rouen and the Seine appeared to have slackened slightly, with a mass attack now concentrated on Paris and southward from Reims

From Paris:

A French counter-offensive near Beaumont-Suroise, 17 miles north of Paris, has advanced five miles against German forces, a French military spokesman in Paris stated today.

"Our troops are holding everywhere," the spokesman said.

"However, there is a delicate point in the Champagne sector, where the Germans are pushing hard in order to separate our armies from the Maginot Line.

"Throughout the front they have thrown 120 divisions—estimated to be the maximum available—into the battle."

He said the Germans were pushing westward against Le Havre and also were trying to encircle Paris from the West.

On the East, he declared, they have "probably" occupied Reims, since a great armored thrust compelled the French to withdraw from that area.

The spokesman stated that Italy has engaged in neither land or sea actions, but has carried out some air raids.

The Allied air forces, he added, were extremely active within Germany. The French bombed Mannheim, Neustadt and Frankfort, he declared, while the British attacked many convoys and columns and lines of communication.

The spokesman said the Germans carried out air raids on the region east of Paris and on Evreux and Mantest west of the capital.

money over a period of several years during which she attempted to regain race-track gambling losses.

According to Newlon, Mrs. Karshner allegedly admitted that the first money was taken from the bank and a false entry was made on her books about August 31, 1936. The alleged embezzlements continued until December 23, 1939, when she admitted to bank officials that her books were falsified.

Mrs. Karshner's bond of $2,500 was not renewed by Judge Underwood who placed her in charge of United States Marshal Charles Sisson until time for her sentence next Thursday.

all the forces remaining to us and not to abandon it.

"May I ask you to explain to all your people and all the citizens of the United States that we are resolved to sacrifice ourselves in the struggle we are carrying on for all free men."

"The hour has now come," Reynaud concluded, "for ninety percent of the citizens of the world to unite against the danger which is menacing us.

"I have confidence in the solidarity of the American people in this vital struggle which the Allies are waging not only for their own safety but for the safety of American democracy."

10, the day of Italy's declaration The message was dated June of war.

WASHINGTON, June 13—White House officials momentarily were silent today on cable dispatches from Tours detailing Premier Reynaud's appeal to President Roosevelt. They would not deny, however, that it had been received.

There was reason to believe that the Reynaud message was sent after American Ambassador Bullitt had shown the French premier the text of the President's June 10 Charlottesville, Va., speech.

Observers gathered that Reynaud, while appreciating the extent of Mr. Roosevelt's pledges of aid at Charlottesville, was urgently seeking a formal declaration of American government policy as a more emphatic move to bolster French morale.

Lindy Tells Solons U. S. Must Arm To The Teeth

Great Britain and France have little chance for victory.

He urged, therefore, that America plan to meet any emergency. Presumably he repeated the advice given in his recent radio speech, however—that the country determine exactly what it meant to defend, whether the continental United States or the whole Western Hemisphere, before mapping its air policy.

Present at the meeting in the office of Sen. Bennett Clark (D) Mo., were Sens. Clark, Shipstead (F-L) Minn.; Worth Clark (D) Ida.; La Follette (P) Wis.; Wheeler (D) Mont.; and Rep. Van Zandt (R) Pa., former commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

All have been consistent and vocal foes of any participation by the United States—military or diplomatic—in the present European conflict. Wheeler, who had announced that he would support President Roosevelt for a third term, said yesterday that he would bolt both the President and the Democratic party if the latter became what he called a "war party".

Lindbergh has been an equally vigorous defender of the isolationist point of view. In a recent radio broadcast he, in effect, accused the Roosevelt administration of war mongering. His attack on White House policy was answered in another radio speech by Sen. James F. Byrnes (D) S. C., in which he belittled Lindberg's knowledge of international affairs and called attention to the fact that he had been decorated by Germany.

There are increasing evidences of a momentous struggle in congress between the advocates of and for the Allies by every method short of war and those who cling to isolationism. It has become apparent since Mr. Roosevelt's speech at the University of Virginia Monday that the administration is committed to a policy of boundless economic aid for Great Britain and France.

A small but strong bloc appears to be organizing in the senate to make more effective its opposition to the White House.

DUCE'S PLANES ATTACK TOULON, TUNISIAN BASE

Toulon and the French base at Bizerta, Tunisia.

Populous Cities Hit

At the same time, the Rome radio charged that British and French war planes have carried out attacks on "populous Italian cities."

The military communique stated:

"The Italian air force carried out further bombing raids on enemy air and naval bases, according to plan.

"A raid on Bizerta and a raid on Toulon were especially important.

"Huge fires were started at Bizerta and damage was caused to a plant. Aircraft were hit on the ground and nine of these can be considered as put out of action.

"All our aircraft returned to their respective bases.

"In the Mediterranean one of our submarines torpedoed an enemy cruiser and an oil tanker of 10,000 tons.

"At Tobruk near the frontier of Cyrenaica, an attempted British air and naval attack was repulsed by our land, naval and air forces. Slight damage was done to a plant and one of our small mine sweepers was sunk.

"In Italian East Africa enemy air raids were carried out against airdromes at Asmara, Goura, Adiougri and Acordat, causing slight material damage and ten deaths among Italian natives engaged at the airdromes.

"It is now established that six aircraft definitely were brought down by our fighters over Curenaica yesterday.

"Enemy aircraft, probably British, carried out night flights over a few towns in northern Italy. Bombs which fell at Turin, an open town, caused little damage and some loss of life among the civilian population. A detailed report will be published regarding this raid."

The Rome radio broadcast stated that in retaliation for Allied raids on Italian cities, the Italian air force is bombing Allied military objectives exclusively.

CONSERVATION OFFICERS OBTAINING MANY FISH

Pickaway County Conservation Officer Clarence Francis reported Thursday that Lloyd Volk and Mark White, state conservation officers conducting a fish check in Big Darby Creek, were finding many shovel-head cat fish, channel cat fish, sun fish and blue gills in their nets. The first net, raised Thursday, contained six shovelhead cat fish weighing from five to 13 pounds.

The check is being conducted in Jackson Township near the Gerhardt farm.

FOUR PLACES IN CITY LOOTED OF VARIOUS ITEMS

Circleville police Thursday were searching for persons who broke into four Circleville establishments Wednesday evening, stealing a number of articles and damaging others.

John Hitt's candy establishment on Western Avenue was broken into about 4 p. m., the police said, and two hours later the candy machine at the Cliftona Theatre was reported damaged.

Everett Ferguson, barber on South Court Street, said that four razors and a pocket watch had been taken from his shop sometime Wednesday night, while the Pickaway Grain Co. reported a gum machine missing.

Police Chief William McCrady said that he was not certain the same person or persons had molested all four places, but added that such a case was possible.

STOMACH SEEMED TO BE FULL OF HOT SOUR FERMENTATIONS

Young Circleville Student says wonderful relief came after Vendol relieved constipation. Advises everyone to try famous medicine.

MISS MILDRED THIEME

Miss Mildred Thieme of 105 East High Street, who is taking a special course of the Circleville High School, and is a very popular student recently said, "I had suffered from constipation for years, and this condition forced me to eat light meals, but even what I ate caused 'heartburn,' gas, shortness of breath, fiery acid risings, and sour stomach, and sometimes made me so nervous that I couldn't rest well.

"Reading what Vendol was doing for other suffering people all around here, I gave it a trial, and it relieved my constipation so well that now I can eat anything, even fried foods, with no distress, nervousness, or headaches, and the dizzy spells are things of the past and I sleep like a healthy child. I feel so much better that I can't praise Vendol enough."

Vendol contains extracts of 12 Roots and Herbs mixed with Valuable Alkalines, and due to this wonderful combination of ingredients, gives relief to many different symptoms all at the same time. Miserable people tell how they get such a cleansing and invigorating effect from Vendol, they soon feel like different men and women. If you have the same troubles, give Vendol a chance to help you.

Vendol is sold and displayed by all leading druggists and is highly recommended here by Myrkrantz Drug Store.

Nazi Ultimatum For Paris Near

Valery-En-Caux consisted of four divisions, including one armored corps.

There was no definite announcement regarding Le Havre, but military officials said that the town has not necessarily fallen. It was admitted that the British lost large supplies at St. Valery.

Announcement that Paris had been declared an open town was interpreted in London as meaning that the outskirts and approaches will be defended, but that there will be no street fighting inside the city.

British information declared that the German thrust around Rouen and the Seine appeared to have slackened slightly, with a mass attack now concentrated on Paris and southward from Reims

From Paris:

A French counter-offensive near Beaumont-Suroise, 17 miles north of Paris, has advanced five miles against German forces, a French military spokesman in Paris stated today.

"Our troops are holding everywhere," the spokesman said.

"However, there is a delicate point in the Champagne sector, where the Germans are pushing hard in order to separate our armies from the Maginot Line.

"Throughout the front they have thrown 120 divisions—estimated to be the maximum available—into the battle."

He said the Germans were pushing westward against Le Havre and also were trying to encircle Paris from the West.

On the East, he declared, they have "probably" occupied Reims, since a great armored thrust compelled the French to withdraw from that area.

The spokesman stated that Italy has engaged in neither land or sea actions, but has carried out some air raids.

The Allied air forces, he added, were extremely active within Germany. The French bombed Mannheim, Neustadt and Frankfort, he declared, while the British attacked many convoys and columns and lines of communication.

The spokesman said the Germans carried out air raids on the region east of Paris and on Evreux and Mantest west of the capital.

money over a period of several years during which she attempted to regain race-track gambling losses.

According to Newlon, Mrs. Karshner allegedly admitted that the first money was taken from the bank and a false entry was made on her books about August 31, 1936. The alleged embezzlements continued until December 23, 1939, when she admitted to bank officials that her books were falsified.

Mrs. Karshner's bond of $2,500 was not renewed by Judge Underwood who placed her in charge of United States Marshal Charles Sisson until time for her sentence next Thursday.

all the forces remaining to us and not to abandon it.

"May I ask you to explain to all your people and all the citizens of the United States that we are resolved to sacrifice ourselves in the struggle we are carrying on for all free men."

"The hour has now come," Reynaud concluded, "for ninety percent of the citizens of the world to unite against the danger which is menacing us.

"I have confidence in the solidarity of the American people in this vital struggle which the Allies are waging not only for their own safety but for the safety of American democracy."

10, the day of Italy's declaration

The message was dated June of war.

WASHINGTON, June 13—White House officials momentarily were silent today on cable dispatches from Tours detailing Premier Reynaud's appeal to President Roosevelt. They would not deny, however, that it had been received.

There was reason to believe that the Reynaud message was sent after American Ambassador Bullitt had shown the French premier the text of the President's June 10 Charlottesville, Va., speech.

Observers gathered that Reynaud, while appreciating the extent of Mr. Roosevelt's pledges of aid at Charlottesville, was urgently seeking a formal declaration of American government policy as a more emphatic move to bolster French morale.

Rita Hayworth, brilliant young actress, joins the Bumsteads as Dagwood's former girl friend.

Lindy Tells Solons U. S. Must Arm To The Teeth

Great Britain and France have little chance for victory.

He urged, therefore, that America plan to meet any emergency. Presumably he repeated the advice given in his recent radio speech, however—that the country determine exactly what it meant to defend, whether the continental United States or the whole Western Hemisphere, before mapping its air policy.

Present at the meeting in the office of Sen. Bennett Clark (D) Mo., were Sens. Clark, Shipstead (F-L) Minn.; Worth Clark (D) Ida.; La Follette (P) Wis.; Wheeler (D) Mont.; and Rep. Van Zandt (R) Pa., former commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

All have been consistent and vocal foes of any participation by the United States—military or diplomatic—in the present European conflict. Wheeler, who had announced that he would support President Roosevelt for a third term, said yesterday that he would bolt both the President and the Democratic party if the latter became what he called a "war party".

Lindbergh has been an equally vigorous defender of the isolationist point of view. In a recent radio broadcast he, in effect, accused the Roosevelt administration of war mongering. His attack on White House policy was answered in another radio speech by Sen. James F. Byrnes (D) S. C., in which he belittled Lindberg's knowledge of international affairs and called attention to the fact that he had been decorated by Germany.

There are increasing evidences of a momentous struggle in congress between the advocates of and for the Allies by every method short of war and those who cling to isolationism. It has become apparent since Mr. Roosevelt's speech at the University of Virginia Monday that the administration is committed to a policy of boundless economic aid for Great Britain and France.

A small but strong bloc appears to be organizing in the senate to make more effective its opposition to the White House.

During the next six days the entire 120,000 will be evacuated to these regions for greater safety. But despite the new evacuation, 330,000 children will remain the British capital.

CAIRO—Count Serafino Mazzolini, Italian minister to Egypt, and members of his staff as well as all Italian consular officers in the country were scheduled to leave Egypt today as a result of severance of Italo-Egyptian diplomatic relations. The Italian diplomats will receive safe conduct to the Libyan border.

MADRID—The Spanish government today proclaimed a state of non-belligerency following "extension of the present conflict to the Mediterranean as a result of Italy's entry into the European war."

DUCE'S PLANES ATTACK TOULON, TUNISIAN BASE

Egyptian Premier Declares Nation Will Fight At First Violation

Toulon and the French base at Bizerta, Tunisia.

Populous Cities Hit

At the same time, the Rome radio charged that British and French war planes have carried out attacks on "populous Italian cities."

The military communique stated:

"The Italian air force carried out further bombing raids on enemy air and naval bases, according to plan.

"A raid on Bizerta and a raid on Toulon were especially important.

"Huge fires were started at Bizerta and damage was caused to a plant. Aircraft were hit on the ground and nine of these can be considered as put out of action.

"All our aircraft returned to their respective bases.

"In the Mediterranean one of our submarines torpedoed an enemy cruiser and an oil tanker of 10,000 tons.

"At Tobruk near the frontier of Cyrenaica, an attempted British air and naval attack was repulsed by our land, naval and air forces. Slight damage was done to a plant and one of our small mine sweepers was sunk.

"In Italian East Africa enemy air raids were carried out against airdromes at Asmara, Goura, Adiougri and Acordat, causing slight material damage and ten deaths among Italian natives engaged at the airdromes.

"It is now established that six aircraft definitely were brought down by our fighters over Curenaica yesterday.

"Enemy aircraft, probably British, carried out night flights over a few towns in northern Italy. Bombs which fell at Turin, an open town, caused little damage and some loss of life among the civilian population. A detailed report will be published regarding this raid."

The Rome radio broadcast stated that in retaliation for Allied raids on Italian cities, the Italian air force is bombing Allied military objectives exclusively.

FOUR PLACES IN CITY LOOTED OF VARIOUS ITEMS

Circleville police Thursday were searching for persons who broke into four Circleville establishments Wednesday evening, stealing a number of articles and damaging others.

John Hitt's candy establishment on Western Avenue was broken into about 4 p. m., the police said, and two hours later the candy machine at the Cliftona Theatre was reported damaged.

Everett Ferguson, barber on South Court Street, said that four razors and a pocket watch had been taken from his shop sometime Wednesday night, while the Pickaway Grain Co. reported a gum machine missing.

Police Chief William McCrady said that he was not certain the same person or persons had molested all four places, but added that such a case was possible.

Young Circleville Student says wonderful relief came after Vendol relieved constipation. Advises everyone to try famous medicine.

MISS MILDRED THIEME

Miss Mildred Thieme of 105 East High Street, who is taking a special course of the Circleville High School, and is a very popular student recently said, "I had suffered from constipation for years, and this condition forced me to eat light meals, but even what I ate caused 'heartburn,' gas, shortness of breath, fiery acid risings, and sour stomach, and sometimes made me so nervous that I couldn't rest well.

"Reading what Vendol was doing for other suffering people all around here, I gave it a trial, and it relieved my constipation so well that now I can eat anything, even fried foods, with no distress, nervousness, or headaches, and the dizzy spells are things of the past and I sleep like a healthy child. I feel so much better that I can't praise Vendol enough."

Vendol contains extracts of 12 Roots and Herbs mixed with Valuable Alkalines, and due to this wonderful combination of ingredients, gives relief to many different symptoms all at the same time. Miserable people tell how they get such a cleansing and invigorating effect from Vendol, they soon feel like different men and women. If you have the same troubles, give Vendol a chance to help you.

Vendol is sold and displayed by all leading druggists and is highly recommended here by Myrkrantz Drug Store.

EIGHT AT STATE WELFARE MEET IN DELAWARE, O.

Relief Officials, Members Of Benevolent Society Hear Discussions

MANY QUERIES VOICED

Prominent Speakers Have Parts In Wednesday Conference

Eight Circleville persons interested in welfare work attended an interesting regional meeting of the Ohio Welfare Conference Wednesday in Willis High School auditorium, Delaware. The theme of the meeting was: "To Promote the General Welfare."

Included in the delegation were D. H. Marcy, relief director; Miss Gretchen Moeller and Miss Charlotte Moore, case investigators for the relief administration; Wade Canter, supervisor of surplus commodities; Miss Alice Keller, assistant certifying agent, and Miss Florence Dunton, Mrs. Ward Robinson and Miss Clara Southward from the Circleville Benevolent Association.

Counties participating in the conference included Champaign, Delaware, Fayette, Franklin, Logan, Madison, Pickaway and Union.

Numerous prominent speakers were on the program which started in the morning and continued through the afternoon. Among the speakers were Dr. Floyd Faust of the Broad Street Church of Christ, Columbus; R. K. Shaw, Madison County representative in the assembly; Dr. G. F. Moench, Delaware County health commissioner; L. W. Reese, superintendent of Washington C. H. schools; D. R. Smith, superintendent of Delaware schools, and Lucia J. Bing, chief of the field staff of the division of public assistance.

Numerous questions were discussed, several of which appeared important to the Circleville delegation. One of the most vital was: "How Does Your Community Rate?" in which the following questions were asked:

Does the community protect its children and youth from moral hazards as well as it does from physical hazards?

Is there as effective protection from poisonous literature as from poisonous foods?

Does the community provide wholesome places for play and recreation with adequate supervision?

Is the community doing all that it can do to control the type of motion pictures witnessed by children?

Are radio programs studied and rated in the same way that motion pictures are rated?

Does the community provide dances for its young people with such surroundings and such good music that the young people are attracted away from commercial dance halls and wtih such careful supervision that the liquor problem is eliminated?

Does the community provide a sufficient number of voluntary youth organizations for boys and girls of all ages, so that practically every child who wants to can belong to a well supervised group?

Does the community provide adequate instruction on the effect of alcohol on the human body?

Are children given instruction in the biological facts of sex, so that the subject occupies its normal place in their minds along with other functions of the human body; and morbid curiosity is avoided?

Are children given sufficient spiritual and moral training to carry them through a period of insecurity and shifting moral standards?

Are young people given adequate preparation for marriage, for home-making and parenthood?

Do the public schools prepare youth for useful living and self-support through the discovery and development of individual abilities and vocational guidance?

Is the delinquent child treated in such a way as to win his respect for law and law enforcement officers, and to create in him a determination to avoid future offenses, and to provide him an opportunity to associate with those whose influence would be altogether constructive?

Are the standards of conduct of the adult in the community such as to set the right example for the younger generation?

Alice Blue Marks Irene Dunne's Warm Weather Fashions

ALICE Blue, reborn with renewed popularity of the musical hit, "Alice Blue Gown," from "Irene," colorfully accents these new modes worn by Irene Dunne, seen opposite Cary Grant in the new comedy romance 'My Favorite Wife" which opens at the Grand Theatre Sunday. The tweed suit features a long fitted jacket with high slash pockets. The wide-brimmed chapeau is particularly a la mode, boasting straw and flowers in Alice Blue.

NEW ADVERTISING MEDIUM

CHICAGO,—A new medium for outdoor advertising, being developed by the railroads for themselves, is the sides of freight cars. The Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad is drawing route maps of the system on its box cars, while other roads are promoting crack trains or picturing scenic spots served by the line.

treaty. And it took ten years plus Adolf Hitler to prove that Admiral Pratt was right.

Today, the Navy is building more destroyers and smaller vessels than at any time since the World War, for the current need is a lot of ships to protect both coasts plus Latin America.

TOP-HEAVY DESTROYERS

In constructing these destroyers, the rigidity of Admiralty intellect once again caused disaster. The Bureau of Engineering was defective in planning the destroyers, while Engineering claimed that Construction was to blame, since it had not followed its specifications.

But the admirals in neither bureau would submit the matter to private naval architects, who were convinced an error was being made. The admirals, like kings, could do no wrong.

Result: thirty of the 36 new destroyers are top-heavy and have to have about 60 tons of lead soldered on their keels, all at the expense of the taxpayer.

Secretary Edison finally stepped in to amalgamate the two bureaus so there will be no more buck-passing. This house-cleaning should have been done years ago, for during the Hoover Administration, five of the new 10,000-ton cruisers were found to have cracked sternposts, which had to be replaced at a cost of $30,000 each. Also the cruisers rolled so badly that they had to be equipped with rolling tanks and keel fins.

In other words, naval inefficiency occurs under both Democrats and Republicans—if they don't keep an eye on the admirals.

ANNAPOLIS CLIQUE

This rigidity of intellect upon the part of the admirals is due partly to the Annapolis caste system. A total of 110 Annapolis graduates were in charge of the designs for the top-heavy destroyers. Civilian experts below them questioned their judgment, but were not heeded. They did not belong to the Annapolis clique.

Fortunately for the Navy, Annapolis turns out an A-1, all-around officer, capable of doing almost any naval job. But unfortunately for the Navy, an officer who excels on the bridge of a battleship may not be so well equipped as a technical designer of ships.

Furthermore, the admirals seem to be adamant against too much naval research, especially if that research is conducted by civilians.

Two years ago, for instance, the House Naval Affairs Committee provided $15,000,000 for experiment with aerial bombs, aerial mines, lighter-than-air craft, heavier-than-air craft, and "other material developments for the national defense."

But the admirals turned this down. It is not often that any branch of the Government rejects money, but this time the admirals appeared before the Senate Committee and vetoed the $15,000,000 for research. They did not say so, but it was suspected that their opposition arose from the fact that civilian inventors were to play an important part in spending the research money.

NAVY WIVES

Most discussed question in the Navy today is its promotion system. Unlike the Army, promotion in the Navy does not depend upon seniority, but upon stiff examinations, ability, and as in most things, upon politics, pull and popularity.

Critics of the system claim that the three latter qualifications now overshadow the first two, and that many a man fails to make the grade in the Navy merely because his wife did not leave cards upon the wife of an admiral on the Selection Board.

Unquestionably there is something to this. In peacetime, wives rule the Navy for more than most people suspect, and the Navy would do well to add to its "selection" requirements a vote of an officer's popularity with his enlisted men, as well as how well he plays bridge or entertains the wife of the commanding officer.

Despite these defects, there is no question that the hard-boiled system of eliminating officers who do not pass periodical tests makes the Navy far more efficient than the Army, and is one reason for the average high quality of its personnel today.

ANDERSON DIVORCE

A divorce and temporary custody of her child has been granted Thelma Anderson, a minor, by the Common Pleas Court in her divorce suit against Harold Anderson, Route 1, Circleville. Her petition, filed March 9 by her mother, Angelina Welch, 1120 South Court Street, charged Anderson with gross neglect of duty.

EIGHT AT STATE WELFARE MEET IN DELAWARE, O.

Relief Officials, Members Of Benevolent Society Hear Discussions

MANY QUERIES VOICED

Prominent Speakers Have Parts In Wednesday Conference

Eight Circleville persons interested in welfare work attended an interesting regional meeting of the Ohio Welfare Conference Wednesday in Willis High School auditorium, Delaware. The theme of the meeting was: "To Promote the General Welfare."

Included in the delegation were D. H. Marcy, relief director; Miss Gretchen Moeller and Miss Charlotte Moore, case investigators for the relief administration; Wade Canter, supervisor of surplus commodities; Miss Alice Keller, assistant certifying agent, and Miss Florence Dunton, Mrs. Ward Robinson and Miss Clara Southward from the Circleville Benevolent Association.

Counties participating in the conference included Champaign, Delaware, Fayette, Franklin, Logan, Madison, Pickaway and Union.

Numerous prominent speakers were on the program which started in the morning and continued through the afternoon. Among the speakers were Dr. Floyd Faust of the Broad Street Church of Christ, Columbus; R. K. Shaw, Madison County representative in the assembly; Dr. G. F. Moench, Delaware County health commissioner; L. W. Reese, superintendent of Washington C. H. schools; D. R. Smith, superintendent of Delaware schools, and Lucia J. Bing, chief of the field staff of the division of public assistance.

Numerous questions were discussed, several of which appeared important to the Circleville delegation. One of the most vital was: "How Does Your Community Rate?" in which the following questions were asked:

Does the community protect its children and youth from moral hazards as well as it does from physical hazards?

Is there as effective protection from poisonous literature as from poisonous foods?

Does the community provide wholesome places for play and recreation with adequate supervision?

Is the community doing all that it can do to control the type of motion pictures witnessed by children?

Are radio programs studied and rated in the same way that motion pictures are rated?

Does the community provide dances for its young people with such surroundings and such good music that the young people are attracted away from commercial dance halls and wtih such careful supervision that the liquor problem is eliminated?

Does the community provide a sufficient number of voluntary youth organizations for boys and girls of all ages, so that practically every child who wants to can belong to a well supervised group?

Does the community provide adequate instruction on the effect of alcohol on the human body?

Are children given instruction in the biological facts of sex, so that the subject occupies its normal place in their minds along with other functions of the human body; and morbid curiosity is avoided?

Are children given sufficient spiritual and moral training to carry them through a period of insecurity and shifting moral standards?

Are young people given adequate preparation for marriage, for home-making and parenthood?

Do the public schools prepare youth for useful living and self-support through the discovery and development of individual abilities and vocational guidance?

Is the delinquent child treated in such a way as to win his respect for law and law enforcement officers, and to create in him a determination to avoid future offenses, and to provide him an opportunity to associate with those whose influence would be altogether constructive?

Are the standards of conduct of the adult in the community such as to set the right example for the younger generation?

Alice Blue Marks Irene Dunne's Warm Weather Fashions

ALICE Blue, reborn with renewed popularity of the musical hit, "Alice Blue Gown," from "Irene," colorfully accents these new modes worn by Irene Dunne, seen opposite Cary Grant in the new comedy romance 'My Favorite Wife" which opens at the Grand Theatre Sunday. The tweed suit features a long fitted jacket with high slash pockets. The wide-brimmed chapeau is particularly a la mode, boasting straw and flowers in Alice Blue.

Tarlton Church Plans Special Event Sunday

The Tarlton Methodist Church will observe the one hundredth anniversary of its present church building at services scheduled for next Sunday. The Rev. S. N. Root is pastor of the church.

The Rev. A. L. Vandegriff, a former pastor now retired, will deliver the morning address.

A program has been arranged for morning and afternoon. At the noon hour there will be a basket dinner with all residents of the community regardless of denomination are asked to take their baskets and table service to join in the affair. All former pastors of the church are expected to be present.

The church pastor, the Rev. Mr. Root, is widely known in south central Ohio, having been a former superintendent and head of the Maywood Mission, Lancaster.

The morning service, beginning at 9:30 with church school, will include special music with the junior chorus directed by Franklin Ballard and the adult choir directed by Mrs. William Defenbaugh appearing. Mrs. George Wharton of Lancaster will be guest soloist. The Rev. Mr. Vandegriff will speak at this service. Carl Fultz, also of Lancaster, will sing a solo at this service, also.

The basket dinner is scheduled at 12:15.

The afternoon service will begin at 2 o'clock with an address by Dr. J. Ira Jones, district superintendent, scheduled. Music will include a solo by Mrs. Harold S. Defenbaugh of Circleville, a solo by Mrs. Wharton and instrumental music by Miss Frankie Thomas and Emma Bowsher.

The Tarlton Church building is well preserved and worth inspection. Its interior was remodeled several years ago.

CHICAGO,—A new medium for outdoor advertising, being developed by the railroads for themselves, is the sides of freight cars. treaty. And it took ten years plus Adolf Hitler to prove that Admiral Pratt was right.

Today, the Navy is building more destroyers and smaller vessels than at any time since the World War, for the current need is a lot of ships to protect both coasts plus Latin America.

TOP-HEAVY DESTROYERS

In constructing these destroyers, the rigidity of Admiralty intellect once again caused disaster. The Bureau of Engineering was defective in planning the destroyers, while Engineering claimed that Construction was to blame, since it had not followed its specifications.

But the admirals in neither bureau would submit the matter to private naval architects, who were convinced an error was being made. The admirals, like kings, could do no wrong.

Result: thirty of the 36 new destroyers are top-heavy and have to have about 60 tons of lead soldered on their keels, all at the expense of the taxpayer.

Secretary Edison finally stepped in to amalgamate the two bureaus so there will be no more buck-passing. This house-cleaning should have been done years ago, for during the Hoover Administration, five of the new 10,000-ton cruisers were found to have cracked sternposts, which had to be replaced at a cost of $30,000 each. Also the cruisers rolled so badly that they had to be equipped with rolling tanks and keel fins.

In other words, naval inefficiency occurs under both Democrats and Republicans—if they don't keep an eye on the admirals.

ANNAPOLIS CLIQUE

This rigidity of intellect upon the part of the admirals is due partly to the Annapolis caste system. A total of 110 Annapolis graduates were in charge of the designs for the top-heavy destroyers. Civilian experts below them questioned their judgment, but were not heeded. They did not belong to the Annapolis clique.

Fortunately for the Navy, Annapolis turns out an A-1, all-around officer, capable of doing almost any naval job. But unfortunately for the Navy, an officer who excels on the bridge of a battleship may not be so well equipped as a technical designer of ships.

Furthermore, the admirals seem to be adamant against too much naval research, especially if that research is conducted by civilians.

Two years ago, for instance, the House Naval Affairs Committee provided $15,000,000 for experiment with aerial bombs, aerial mines, lighter-than-air craft, heavier-than-air craft, and "other material developments for the national defense."

But the admirals turned this down. It is not often that any branch of the Government rejects money, but this time the admirals appeared before the Senate Committee and vetoed the $15,000,000 for research. They did not say so, but it was suspected that their opposition arose from the fact that civilian inventors were to play an important part in spending the research money.

NAVY WIVES

Most discussed question in the Navy today is its promotion system. Unlike the Army, promotion in the Navy does not depend upon seniority, but upon stiff examinations, ability, and as in most things, upon politics, pull and popularity.

Critics of the system claim that the three latter qualifications now overshadow the first two, and that many a man fails to make the grade in the Navy merely because his wife did not leave cards upon the wife of an admiral on the Selection Board.

Unquestionably there is something to this. In peacetime, wives rule the Navy for more than most people suspect, and the Navy would do well to add to its "selection" requirements a vote of an officer's popularity with his enlisted men, as well as how well he plays bridge or entertains the wife of the commanding officer.

Despite these defects, there is no question that the hard-boiled system of eliminating officers who do not pass periodical tests makes the Navy far more efficient than the Army, and is one reason for the average high quality of its personnel today.

SOBER REFLECTIONS

WAKING up suddenly from our long dream of peaceful isolation, we Americans need a little time to get our bearings. We have probably suffered the biggest shock of our history, from seeing first how small our world is and how beset with dangers.

But there is evidence from all sides that we can "take it". Preparations for self-defense are going ahead at a rate which only a week or two ago would have seemed impossible.

Europe, as Mr. Hoover was observing rather truly some years ago, is a "poor-house" and is now waging costly war on its increasingly shaky credit. America collectively is rich beyond the dreams of the Old World, no matter how poor some of us may feel individually. We have the resources, material and human, to do what has to be done, and we have the organizing ability.

We do not know yet whether this means actual war for us—whether it will yet seem necessary to take up arms against the dictators in order to save the last two democracies left in the Old World, or to save our own. We know that we would feel very lonely if we were the only free nation left. Indeed, we feel pretty lonely right now as matters stand.

The surest thing about it is that we are at a big turning point in our history. Just where we are going from here, nobody knows. We can only see that we must arm quickly for safety, and give material and help and encouragement to our hard-pressed sister democracies.

MOVING WEST

BRITAIN, as our financial reporters observe, may not be transferring its government to Canada, but it has begun transferring its money to this country. Gold has been coming over lately in enormous volume. British cash reserves go into the custody of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. Liquid securities—stocks and bonds—likewise seem to be pouring over here, for greater safety.

This movement is naturally compared to plans for sending large numbers of English children, and perhaps old people also, to Canada.

It is evident that while we seem to be saying good-bye to much of the Old World, our relations with the western fringe of Europe may be closer from now on. This seems especially true of England, and also of France, if they be not brought entirely under Nazi subjection.

As for the little continental democracies now subjugated, Norway, Denmark, Holland and Belgium, we cannot tell. If their enslavement continues, their people will naturally gravitate to the United States and Canada as far as they are able to.

U. S. NAVY STILL INADEQUATE

WASHINGTON — The United States Navy is the President's personal pride and joy. No other branch of the Government receives such minute attention from the White House.

For instance, when the new naval hospital was being considered, Roosevelt insisted that it be a structure about 20 stories high. Naval doctors disagreed, said that this tower-like structure would make the floors too small, that efficient hospitals had larger floors, were built lower and covered more acreage.

But Roosevelt liked the idea of a hospital towering over the fields of Maryland like a monument, and since Roosevelt runs the Navy, the new naval hospital is being built that way.

To Franklin D. Roosevelt in large part must go the responsibility for whatever the U. S. Navy is today. He began securing money for more warships the minute he stepped into the White House. This was his biggest naval achievement. But he also has tolerated certain inefficiencies.

INADEQUATE NAVY

In brief, it is probably a fact that the U. S. Navy today is the strongest in the world. Its personnel probably tops any other navy's, its markmanship record is almost 100 percent, and its morale was never better. Nexertheless, it is not equal to defending both coasts of the United States and the Panama Canal.

There are two reasons for this, the first being that American defense strategy never contemplated defending both coasts of the United States at the same time. It relied upon a friendly British fleet in the Atlantic. Obviously the collapse of this reliance is no fault of the Navy nor of any President.

Second defect, however, is its own fault. This defect is a certain rigidity of mind, a refusal to recognize new methods of warfare, a conviction that admirals, like kings, can do no wrong.

RIGID BRAINS

Some of the Navy's current weakness undoubtedly goes back to the London Naval Conference of 1930, at which the admirals set an all-time record for rigidity of intellect. Prior to London, the British had been building 10,000-ton cruisers carrying 8-inch guns. And because the British had them, most of the American admirals said they must have them too.

In vain did Secretary of State Stimson and the late Joseph P. Cotton, his Under Secretary, argue that this new type of vessel was relative.y untried, that the Navy should not put all its cruiser eggs in one basket, that 6-inch gun cruisers were better for close-up fighting, and finally that future warfare might completely change cruiser technique.

However, most of the admirals tried to defeat ratification of the London Treaty, and virtually ostracized Admiral William V. Pratt because he OK'd the

CHAPTER THIRTY-SIX

GRAHAM, the butler said that he was sure the old jewelry had been in its case only yesterday, and Mrs. Holmquist, Gayle's maid, who was also a detective, likewise declared she had seen it there.

"There were two cameos in pendants," Graham enumerated, "an English snuff box with a heraldic crest on it in jewels, miss. And a set of 12 sterling teaspoons with some inlay of gold, a gift to Mrs. Merrifield many years before her death, from a wealthy friend in South Africa. Mr. and Mrs. Merrifield had traveled there on some mining interests, I recall. The spoons have never been used."

Gayle nodded in understanding. "They were quite valuable, of course?"

"Oh, yes, miss. I doubt if they have ever been appraised at market value, but the rarity of all the pieces, in addition to the metal and the stones—it must run up a few thousands, miss!"

"It will be hard to dispose of quickly," Bill Bailey put in, and Mrs. Holmquist nodded at once.

"That's our best hope," she said. "The bracelet could have been sold at once, but this old stuff can't. However, the thief is a smart one, let me tell you! I haven't been asleep, but it has happened again right under my nose. You can be sure we'll put plenty of pressure on now."

"Please don't disturb Mr. Merrifield, is all I ask," Gayle begged. And all of them—Bill, Graham, Mrs. Holmquist, and this time Jeremy, agreed to that.

Jeremy was acutely distressed in his own right, now.

Until Bill had told him about it yesterday, Jeremy had known nothing of the theft at his "coming out" party several nights ago. Bill and Gayle had not told him when the theft occurred; but because they had since drifted into intimacy with the wealthy young man and had found a genuine respect for him, they had told him everything, even to the details of searching Lola's room.

Now here today's news brought it all back to them. The excited conference today occurred in hushed tones in the music room, with the new machine still playing its records and changing them unnoticed even as the three youths walked outside. They had had to tell Mrs. Holmquist, maid and detective, that Lola had "disappeared." The woman made no comment; she just listened. But it seemed plain to the three young people that Lola had put over a fast one on Bill—acted her innocence well and then skipped out with whatever valuables she could gather in a hurry. The three talked of this as they left the music room.

"I cannot believe it!" Jeremy declared. "Not Lola! Not Lola!"

Gayle nodded, soberly. "I know how you feel."

"So do I," agreed Bill. "But facts are facts."

"Yesterday when I saw Lola crying, you told me you were wrong about suspecting her, Bill! You—you said yourself that you had made a mistake! That Lola was a wonderful girl!"

For a long moment Bill did not answer. Then he spoke as if in shame. "I know. But when I think calmly—there's the diary, and Lola was hard up for money, probably, and now here's the fact of the new theft plus the fact that Lola is gone. She could have been putting on a grand act with me and Gayle yesterday, crying and all that."

Jeremy shook his head. "I don't believe it."

"I don't either, Jeremy," said Gayle. "Somehow I just don't. But I understand what Bill means."

"I didn't say I believed it," Bill defended himself. "I just listed the possibilities, concerning her. I don't want to believe it, matter of fact, but she's gone and common sense seems to tell me that we'll never see her again. Unless the police can do more than they've done so far."

They were miserable about it for an hour, quite forgetting to go in for lunch until well past noon.

"I have coom back," Lola said simply.

They had wandered out of sight on the lawn.

When they had "talked out," however, they let the matter drop. At 1:30 Bill and Gayle and Jeremy wisely devoted their attention to lunch on the sun porch, and before the meal was over there was a semblance of gaiety and happiness again.

When Mr. Merrifield came downstairs, dressed with hat and cane to be driven to the city, he heard the three young people talking and so went to greet them.

"Please just keep your seats," he urged, when they arose politely. "But your courtesy pleases me. I have heard that young men and young women today are discourteous and selfish. I do not believe it is so. I might have become a crusty old fool, but for the faith you youngsters have restored in me. Jeremy, you are looking well, better than a few weeks ago. More color."

Jeremy promptly showed still more color, blushing for no good reason.

"We have herded him out of the library some, Mr. Merrifield," Bill said, smiling. "He was just working too hard. We've lured him into amateur theatricals."

"Too little work is despicable, and took much is an abomination," the old man said. "Somewhere, my young friend, is a happy middle course. Uh hum, a happy middle course. Find it. Find the happy way."

He left them then, and Gayle shook her head in a certain awe of him which seemed to grow in her all the time. "He speaks always of happiness, seeking happiness, working for happiness. Isn't he grand!"

"Oh, I say—see here, Gayle, he really is!" Jeremy's own enthusiasm was pronounced. "I—I hadn't known him much until you and Bill and the other girls came."

The other girls—only five of them now—returned to The Oaks soon after two o'clock and Bill was waiting for them. He sat with Jeremy and Gayle on porch chairs where they were secluded from most of the mansion, and he held the script of the new play.

"Let's talk business a while and then swim," Bill suggested. "Now, if you fellows don't like this thing, all you have to do is say so. I won't cram it down your throats. I think it's pretty good, but then I wrote it, see? We can re-write it as we need to. You can suggest things. I guess I better read it to you first. I'll try to do some of the main parts in character so as to help you feel the scenes and situations better. Okay?"

They all nodded and chorused an approval. In truth, interest in Bill's comedy, "The Wit to Woo," was high.

It had to do with a young man not unlike Jeremy Tucker himself, who, having many genuine assets, was completely unaware of them. Peculiar quirks of circumstance threw the young hero into close association with girls who were hungry for companionship and romance, and their problem was to make the hero understand their hunger and respond to it.

"I made it in a college setting," Bill explained, "but it might be better if we changed that. The setting isn't so very important. I think we could make the hero in a big business office where a lot of girls worked around him, and get the same effect, if you like that better."

"No!" Tempe Hyde said that. "I like the college better. He's a college president's son now, isn't he? In a girl's college? I think the comedy possibilities are better there."

"So do I," agreed Gayle, "but the business office has advantages, too. For instance, we might—"

"Let's vote on it," another girl put in. "We're all here, and—or are we? Where's Lola?"

Instantly Jeremy's and Bill's face clouded, and Gayle lost her bright cheeriness as well. "Lola is gone," she explained, quietly. "She—well, the truth is, girls, she has probably left us for good. There was a personal matter, I understand."

Regrets were heard. Quick murmurs of sympathy, polite interest. But no further questioning or explanation as to details. The situation wasn't handled very adroitly, so that all of them seemed to feel a sense of strain, yet nobody was willing to clarify the matter. They went determinedly and rather formally back to the play.

"Because I am the most experienced at acting," Bill was saying presently, "I shall cast myself again in the male lead. I ought to be able to act a dumb-cluck man—sort of come natural, I imagine. And—do the rest of you mind if I ask Gayle to handle the feminine lead again?"

As he looked at them in that moment, Bill was suddenly impressed by what seemed to be a flash of anger in little Tempe Hyde's eyes. Then he told himself that he was imagining things.

He was about to assign the other parts when a door behind him opened. Instantly the others showed startled surprise, and Bill turned full around. Lola Montesa was walking toward them.

"I have coom back," she said simply, smiling wanly. "I decide to go away, but I theenk and theenk, and I remember iss never best to run from trouble, and much happeeness iss at thees place. May I sit down?

"Sorry, nothing for you THIS YEAR either, Harbinger."

DIET AND HEALTH

Watch Diabetic Diet

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

MOST CASES of diabetes occur in people over 40, and in fact, most occur in people over 50. We said yesterday in discussing diabetes in children, that the younger the person, the more severe the diabetes in all likelihood. People over 40 are inclined to have a mild form of diabetes and those over 50 an even milder form, and those over 60, still milder form.

Diabetes is simply an inability on the part of the body to utilize sugars and starches. The excess sugar runs off in the urine and sugar in the urine is the most reliable sign of diabetes.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Use of Insulin

Middle-aged people with diabetes, as we say, having a mild form, can utilize about one-half or three-quarters as much sugar and starch as they could in health. Therefore they need, in most instances, only to cut down on sugar in their coffee, desserts, bread, starchy vegetables, such as potatoes and sweet fruits, and they will usually get along all right. Registration and finger printing aren't necessarily as bad as they're represented. It's Uncle Sam's wartime plan of dealing with all aliens in our midst, to guard against Trojan horse, fifth column and other un-American activities. Of course, large numbers of our home folk are warmly in favor of the method. Nevertheless, there's a certain amount of objection to it, on the ground that it's un-American, in itself, to assume that an alien is a spy, a saboteur or some other sort of a tough character until he's furnished proofs to the contrary. If he gets into the United States on a legitimate passport, exponents of this reasoning contend, that ought to be enough.

Now, the fact of the matter is that quite a number of countries register and finger print, not only aliens, but their own citizens, too. However, not all of them insist on it; they do it as a service to the registrants. It's quite the rule in Latin America, but the republic I'm most familiar with is Argentina, so that's the system I'll undertake to describe.

In the Argentine, as elsewhere, almost any individual is likely to find himself occasionally in a position where he needs identification for his own convenience. For instance. SOBER REFLECTIONS

WAKING up suddenly from our long dream of peaceful isolation, we Americans need a little time to get our bearings. We have probably suffered the biggest shock of our history, from seeing first how small our world is and how beset with dangers.

But there is evidence from all sides that we can "take it". Preparations for self-defense are going ahead at a rate which only a week or two ago would have seemed impossible.

Europe, as Mr. Hoover was observing rather truly some years ago, is a "poor-house" and is now waging costly war on its increasingly shaky credit. America collectively is rich beyond the dreams of the Old World, no matter how poor some of us may feel individually. We have the resources, material and human, to do what has to be done, and we have the organizing ability.

We do not know yet whether this means actual war for us—whether it will yet seem necessary to take up arms against the dictators in order to save the last two democracies left in the Old World, or to save our own. We know that we would feel very lonely if we were the only free nation left. Indeed, we feel pretty lonely right now as matters stand.

The surest thing about it is that we are at a big turning point in our history. Just where we are going from here, nobody knows. We can only see that we must arm quickly for safety, and give material and help and encouragement to our hard-pressed sister democracies.

MOVING WEST

BRITAIN, as our financial reporters observe, may not be transferring its government to Canada, but it has begun transferring its money to this country. Gold has been coming over lately in enormous volume. British cash reserves go into the custody of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. Liquid securities—stocks and bonds—likewise seem to be pouring over here, for greater safety.

This movement is naturally compared to plans for sending large numbers of English children, and perhaps old people also, to Canada.

It is evident that while we seem to be saying good-bye to much of the Old World, our relations with the western fringe of Europe may be closer from now on. This seems especially true of England, and also of France, if they be not brought entirely under Nazi subjection.

As for the little continental democracies now subjugated, Norway, Denmark, Holland and Belgium, we cannot tell. If their enslavement continues, their people will naturally gravitate to the United States and Canada as far as they are able to.

U. S. NAVY STILL INADEQUATE

WASHINGTON — The United States Navy is the President's personal pride and joy. No other branch of the Government receives such minute attention from the White House.

For instance, when the new naval hospital was being considered, Roosevelt insisted that it be a structure about 20 stories high. Naval doctors disagreed, said that this tower-like structure would make the floors too small, that efficient hospitals had larger floors, were built lower and covered more acreage.

But Roosevelt liked the idea of a hospital towering over the fields of Maryland like a monument, and since Roosevelt runs the Navy, the new naval hospital is being built that way.

To Franklin D. Roosevelt in large part must go the responsibility for whatever the U. S. Navy is today. He began securing money for more warships the minute he stepped into the White House. This was his biggest naval achievement. But he also has tolerated certain inefficiencies.

INADEQUATE NAVY

In brief, it is probably a fact that the U. S. Navy today is the strongest in the world. Its personnel probably tops any other navy's, its markmanship record is almost 100 percent, and its morale was never better. Nexertheless, it is not equal to defending both coasts of the United States and the Panama Canal.

There are two reasons for this, the first being that American defense strategy never contemplated defending both coasts of the United States at the same time. It relied upon a friendly British fleet in the Atlantic. Obviously the collapse of this reliance is no fault of the Navy nor of any President.

Second defect, however, is its own fault. This defect is a certain rigidity of mind, a refusal to recognize new methods of warfare, a conviction that admirals, like kings, can do no wrong.

RIGID BRAINS

Some of the Navy's current weakness undoubtedly goes back to the London Naval Conference of 1930, at which the admirals set an all-time record for rigidity of intellect. Prior to London, the British had been building 10,000-ton cruisers carrying 8-inch guns. And because the British had them, most of the American admirals said they must have them too.

In vain did Secretary of State Stimson and the late Joseph P. Cotton, his Under Secretary, argue that this new type of vessel was relative.y untried, that the Navy should not put all its cruiser eggs in one basket, that 6-inch gun cruisers were better for close-up fighting, and finally that future warfare might completely change cruiser technique.

However, most of the admirals tried to defeat ratification of the London Treaty, and virtually ostracized Admiral William V. Pratt because he OK'd the

CHAPTER THIRTY-SIX

GRAHAM, the butler said that he was sure the old jewelry had been in its case only yesterday, and Mrs. Holmquist, Gayle's maid, who was also a detective, likewise declared she had seen it there.

"There were two cameos in pendants," Graham enumerated, "an English snuff box with a heraldic crest on it in jewels, miss. And a set of 12 sterling teaspoons with some inlay of gold, a gift to Mrs. Merrifield many years before her death, from a wealthy friend in South Africa. Mr. and Mrs. Merrifield had traveled there on some mining interests, I recall. The spoons have never been used."

Gayle nodded in understanding. "They were quite valuable, of course?"

"Oh, yes, miss. I doubt if they have ever been appraised at market value, but the rarity of all the pieces, in addition to the metal and the stones—it must run up a few thousands, miss!"

"It will be hard to dispose of quickly," Bill Bailey put in, and Mrs. Holmquist nodded at once.

"That's our best hope," she said. "The bracelet could have been sold at once, but this old stuff can't. However, the thief is a smart one, let me tell you! I haven't been asleep, but it has happened again right under my nose. You can be sure we'll put plenty of pressure on now."

"Please don't disturb Mr. Merrifield, is all I ask," Gayle begged. And all of them—Bill, Graham, Mrs. Holmquist, and this time Jeremy, agreed to that.

Jeremy was acutely distressed in his own right, now.

Until Bill had told him about it yesterday, Jeremy had known nothing of the theft at his "coming out" party several nights ago. Bill and Gayle had not told him when the theft occurred; but because they had since drifted into intimacy with the wealthy young man and had found a genuine respect for him, they had told him everything, even to the details of searching Lola's room.

Now here today's news brought it all back to them. The excited conference today occurred in hushed tones in the music room, with the new machine still playing its records and changing them unnoticed even as the three youths walked outside. They had had to tell Mrs. Holmquist, maid and detective, that Lola had "disappeared." The woman made no comment; she just listened. But it seemed plain to the three young people that Lola had put over a fast one on Bill—acted her innocence well and then skipped out with whatever valuables she could gather in a hurry. The three talked of this as they left the music room.

"I cannot believe it!" Jeremy declared. "Not Lola! Not Lola!"

Gayle nodded, soberly. "I know how you feel."

"So do I," agreed Bill. "But facts are facts."

"Yesterday when I saw Lola crying, you told me you were wrong about suspecting her, Bill! You—you said yourself that you had made a mistake! That Lola was a wonderful girl!"

For a long moment Bill did not answer. Then he spoke as if in shame. "I know. But when I think calmly—there's the diary, and Lola was hard up for money, probably, and now here's the fact of the new theft plus the fact that Lola is gone. She could have been putting on a grand act with me and Gayle yesterday, crying and all that."

Jeremy shook his head. "I don't believe it."

"I don't either, Jeremy," said Gayle. "Somehow I just don't. But I understand what Bill means."

"I didn't say I believed it," Bill defended himself. "I just listed the possibilities, concerning her. I don't want to believe it, matter of fact, but she's gone and common sense seems to tell me that we'll never see her again. Unless the police can do more than they've done so far."

They were miserable about it for an hour, quite forgetting to go in for lunch until well past noon.

"I have coom back," Lola said simply.

They had wandered out of sight on the lawn.

When they had "talked out," however, they let the matter drop. At 1:30 Bill and Gayle and Jeremy wisely devoted their attention to lunch on the sun porch, and before the meal was over there was a semblance of gaiety and happiness again.

When Mr. Merrifield came downstairs, dressed with hat and cane to be driven to the city, he heard the three young people talking and so went to greet them.

"Please just keep your seats," he urged, when they arose politely. "But your courtesy pleases me. I have heard that young men and young women today are discourteous and selfish. I do not believe it is so. I might have become a crusty old fool, but for the faith you youngsters have restored in me. Jeremy, you are looking well, better than a few weeks ago. More color."

Jeremy promptly showed still more color, blushing for no good reason.

"We have herded him out of the library some, Mr. Merrifield," Bill said, smiling. "He was just working too hard. We've lured him into amateur theatricals."

"Too little work is despicable, and took much is an abomination," the old man said. "Somewhere, my young friend, is a happy middle course. Uh hum, a happy middle course. Find it. Find the happy way."

He left them then, and Gayle shook her head in a certain awe of him which seemed to grow in her all the time. "He speaks always of happiness, seeking happiness, working for happiness. Isn't he grand!"

"Oh, I say—see here, Gayle, he really is!" Jeremy's own enthusiasm was pronounced. "I—I hadn't known him much until you and Bill and the other girls came."

The other girls—only five of them now—returned to The Oaks soon after two o'clock and Bill was waiting for them. He sat with Jeremy and Gayle on porch chairs where they were secluded from most of the mansion, and he held the script of the new play.

"Let's talk business a while and then swim," Bill suggested. "Now, if you fellows don't like this thing, all you have to do is say so. I won't cram it down your throats. I think it's pretty good, but then I wrote it, see? We can re-write it as we need to. You can suggest things. I guess I better read it to you first. I'll try to do some of the main parts in character so as to help you feel the scenes and situations better. Okay?"

They all nodded and chorused an approval. In truth, interest in Bill's comedy, "The Wit to Woo," was high.

It had to do with a young man not unlike Jeremy Tucker himself, who, having many genuine assets, was completely unaware of them. Peculiar quirks of circumstance threw the young hero into close association with girls who were hungry for companionship and romance, and their problem was to make the hero understand their hunger and respond to it.

"I made it in a college setting," Bill explained, "but it might be better if we changed that. The setting isn't so very important. I think we could make the hero in a big business office where a lot of girls worked around him, and get the same effect, if you like that better."

"No!" Tempe Hyde said that. "I like the college better. He's a college president's son now, isn't he? In a girl's college? I think the comedy possibilities are better there."

"So do I," agreed Gayle, "but the business office has advantages, too. For instance, we might—"

"Let's vote on it," another girl put in. "We're all here, and—or are we? Where's Lola?"

Instantly Jeremy's and Bill's face clouded, and Gayle lost her bright cheeriness as well. "Lola is gone," she explained, quietly. "She—well, the truth is, girls, she has probably left us for good. There was a personal matter, I understand."

Regrets were heard. Quick murmurs of sympathy, polite interest. But no further questioning or explanation as to details. The situation wasn't handled very adroitly, so that all of them seemed to feel a sense of strain, yet nobody was willing to clarify the matter. They went determinedly and rather formally back to the play.

"Because I am the most experienced at acting," Bill was saying presently, "I shall cast myself again in the male lead. I ought to be able to act a dumb-cluck man—sort of come natural, I imagine. And—do the rest of you mind if I ask Gayle to handle the feminine lead again?"

As he looked at them in that moment, Bill was suddenly impressed by what seemed to be a flash of anger in little Tempe Hyde's eyes. Then he told himself that he was imagining things.

He was about to assign the other parts when a door behind him opened. Instantly the others showed startled surprise, and Bill turned full around. Lola Montesa was walking toward them.

"I have coom back," she said simply, smiling wanly. "I decide to go away, but I theenk and theenk, and I remember iss never best to run from trouble, and much happeeness iss at thees place. May I sit down?

Watch Diabetic Diet

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

MOST CASES of diabetes occur in people over 40, and in fact, most occur in people over 50. We said yesterday in discussing diabetes in children, that the younger the person, the more severe the diabetes in all likelihood. People over 40 are inclined to have a mild form of diabetes and those over 50 an even milder form, and those over 60, still milder form.

Diabetes is simply an inability on the part of the body to utilize sugars and starches. The excess sugar runs off in the urine and sugar in the urine is the most reliable sign of diabetes.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Use of Insulin

Middle-aged people with diabetes, as we say, having a mild form, can utilize about one-half or three-quarters as much sugar and starch as they could in health. Therefore they need, in most instances, only to cut down on sugar in their coffee, desserts, bread, starchy vegetables, such as potatoes and sweet fruits, and they will usually get along all right. CIRCLEVILLE STREET IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM WINS WPA APPROVAL

50 MEN TO BE USED IN MAJOR REPAIR PROJECT

$7,000 Received From State To Open Work; Reber Area To Be First

TO FIX WATT STREET

Much Sidewalk, Curb And Gutter To Be Built In Northend

Service department officials received $7,000 from the state WPA office Thursday after their WPA job schedule for street improvement in Circleville had been approved by the Columbus office.

Actual work on city streets for 50 men will begin in less than two weeks, service department officials believed, nearly eighty percent of those employed being from Circleville and the remainder from Pickaway County.

The $7,000 received Thursday is expected to last until July 1, at which time another grant by the state office will be made. The government's share in the entire project is expected to be about $18,000, and the work is expected to last for approximately three months.

First work will start on Reber Avenue, where 2,400 cubic yards of dirt will be removed and replaced with 5,000 cubic yards of base gravel and 5,000 square yards of fine grade dressing.

Nearly 1,335 square yards of brick surface will be removed from Watt Street and replaced with a 7-inch concrete foundation, reinforced with steel. The original bricks will then be cleaned and replaced.

About 15, 154 square feet of concrete side walk and 1,720 lineal feet of curb will be laid on Park and Seyfert Avenue as a part of the WPA sidewalk, curb and gutter improvement.

In the downtown section, Bank and Buckeye alleys will be improved. The service department estimates that about 450 yards of excavation will be done on the two alleys, which will be resurfaced with 1,015 square yards of sand bed and 1,015 square yards of brick.

Work will also be done on Nichols, Case and Blaney Alleys, where 460 cubic yards of base gravel and 3,800 square yards of fine grade dressing will replace 9,000 cubic yards of excavation and waste.

Ford Starts to Tool Plant to Build Planes

DEARBORN, Mich., June 13—Henry Ford, whose father thought he was "an awful fool," today is a possibility for the title—"king of airplane makers!"

The multi-millionaire wizard of mass production and his large staff of engineers already have started tooling over for mass plane engine production at his River Rouge plant—the largest factory in the world under one roof in which nearly 80,000 men daily perform the 20th cenutry miracle of multiple output.

The man who built an industrial empire from a horseless carriage is ready to prove that he can make 1,000 fighting planes a day—a statement that apparently assured the nation of the armada of 50,000 planes asked for by President Roosevelt in his defense message to congress.

Perhaps that will be his answer to armed conflict. He once said:

"I want peace—and I will fight like the devil to get it."

The eyes of the world are on Ford today. "Action" appears to be his watchword. There are a few skeptics, but no one is dismissing the remarks of a man who rose from a Michigan farm hand to become one of the richest men in the world.

Ford said he could make the planes within six months of production (provided they were of a standard type, there was no government "red tape" and he had the counsel of men like Lindbergh and Rickenbacher) and his men are with him.

A high company official sums up the opinion of everyone from Ford automotive engineers to factory hands. He says:

"If Ford said he could do it, he c-a-n do it."

Ford Moves Fast

They move fast when Ford gives the "go ahead" 'and apparently he has issued such an order. His son, Edsel, journeyed to Washington less than 24 hours after the Fords and their engineers inspected a crack army pursuit ship, sent to Dearborn at the request of the inventor. The conference in the capital was with William S. Knudsen, on leave of absence from the presidency of General Motors to head production in the nation's defense council.

Back in Dearborn the same day was Edsel. Within 24 hours it was disclosed that tooling over had begun—the initial stage in Ford's assertion that he could turn out planes nearly as fast as cars.

The hard-pressed Allies have not concealed their interest in Ford's statement which literally rocked aviation circles. If he could fill the government's orders as rapidly as he contends, he could, if he would, supply Great Britain and France.

Tooling, the first task, is no overnight job. It took Ford about two years to re-tool from the now famous "model T" to the gear shifting Ford of today. But it would not take that long for tooling over for airplane engines. His aviation engineers have kept abreast of developments although the company ceased manufacturing transport planes some years ago.

Aviation circles think that one reason why the Allies are so interested in Ford's plan for mass production is that it would mean he would not have to ship overseas the finished plane engine—just the tools. There is, for instance, a Ford plant at Dagenham, England. All that would be necessary to follow Ford's ideas would be to have copies of the tools installed.

GUARDS PLACED AS BATTLESHIP GOES IN WATER

NEW YORK, June 13—More than 500 marines in adidtion to scores of special policemen, detectives and G-men were mobilized to guard the $80,000,000 battleship North Carolina against sabotage at its launching in Brooklyn navy yard today.

Between 25,000 and 35,000 persons were expected to witness the launching of the 35,000 ton mano-war. More than 50,000 pounds of grease are being used to slip her down the ways where a fleet of 14 tugs will be waiting to berth her.

Isabel Hoey, the daughter of Gov. Clyde H. Hoey, will sponsor the ship.

The North Carolina is 714 feet long at the waterline and is designed to carry 16 inch guns in three turrets.

MARCY ACCEPTING CCC NAMES FOR JULY QUOTA

Application blanks for Pickaway County's July CCC enrollment are being issued by the relief office. D. H. Marcy, director, said Thursday that while the July quota has not yet been announced his office is accepting applications to evade the usual last-minute rush for places in the conservation corps.

RELIEF OFFICE TO MOVE TO GARAGE LATE IN JUNE

The Pickaway County relief office, sewing center and recreation offices will be removed June 27 or 28 to the new county garage building, West High Street.

A part of the garage building is being remodeled to house the various agencies, located at present in the Colville building, East Main Street, and the Goldfrederick building, South Pickaway Street.

The Home and Hospital will be removed from the old school building, West Huston Street, to the East Main Street property as soon as the relief offices are transferred.

BANK OFFICIALS FAIL TO NAME HOLDUP SUSPECT

Hope that a second of four bandits who robbed the Circleville Savings and Banking Co. might be identified dwindled Wednesday when bank officials failed to pick Arthur Russell Howell, 24, Columbus, from a police lineup of nine.

Howell, arrested March 23 on a narcotics charge, was involved in a $19,000 bank robbery at South Charleston, and officials thought that possibly he was connected with the $11,500 Circleville bank robbery December 5.

N. E. Reichelderfer and Miss Katherine Mead, employees of the Circleville bank, were taken to Columbus Wednesday by Sheriff Charles Radcliff and Police Chief Willia·· McCrady. They were met in Columbus by Orwell Barr, cashier of the bank, who also witnessed the lineup.

GOTHAM G. O. P. CHIEF OUSTED BY DEWEY MEN

ALBANY, N. Y., June 13—National Committeeman Kenneth F. Simpson, denied renomination by New York's delegation to the Republican national convention, served notice today that he will continue his fight against the nomination of Thomas E. Dewey as the G. O. P. candidate for President.

At the same time, state leaders sought to heal scars created by the unprecedented pre-convention meeting of the 92 delegates, who voted 55 to 37 to nominate J. Russel Sprague, Dewey's campaign manager, as Simpson's successor on the national committee.

The vote was even closer, 51 to 41, on a motion to postpone the Simpson ouster until the delegates met at Philadelphia.

Dewey supporters, who aimed their guns at Simpson because of his coldness to the Dewey candidacy, insisted the vote on national committeeman was not an indication of the number of New York state delegates who will support their man at the national convention.

They claim that some of the 37 delegates who voted against the anti-Simpson resolution will support Dewey for the presidential nomination and that Dewey will have at least 70 of the New York votes on the first ballot.

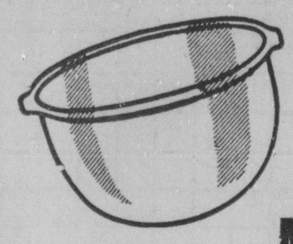

Members of the Simpson bloc, however, say some of the 55 who voted against him were led to do so by promises of patronage and a warning that a Simpson vote would be against party regularity.
